City Scrap Drive Rolls Big Totals

Residents Contribute 112 Tons; Cornell, Terry Companies Give Big Quantities

Wardens Are Help

Air Raid Wardens Are Credited With Much Assistance

The scrap drive in the City of Kingston made great strides over the week-end when collections from householders aggregating 22 tons were made in the first and twelfth wards of this city. This brings the total of scrap collected to date from householders in this city to approximately 112 tons—224,000 pounds—or about eight pounds per person collected from householders.

The Cornell Steamboat Company and Terry Brothers brickyard boosted the grand total with huge amounts during the past week, bringing the grand total from all sources in the City of Kingston to about 500 tons — 1,000,000 pounds—or approximately 35 and five-sevenths pounds per person in this city.

These figures were announced today by Raymond Rignall, chairman of the Salvage Committee of Kingston.

Six trucks started out on Saturday morning at 8 o'clock and continued their collections in the first and twelfth wards until 5:30 in the evening. Chairman Rignall stated that the men worked hard, thoroughly and cheerfully. Some 20 school children also assisted in the work of collecting the scrap. About $1,000 has been realized from the householders' contributions in this current drive.

Chairman Rignall gave credit in large measure for the success of Saturday's drive to the Air Raid Wardens in these two wards. On Friday the wardens visited the homes in the two wards and made personal solicitations for the scrap. The response of the people in these two wards evidenced a genuine spirit of cooperation and sacrifice since they had been solicited on two previous occasions, the chairman asserted.

There were a number of contributions in these wards of iron flagpoles and other material too large to be handled by the crews and they will be collected later.

The drive for scrap will be continued throughout the wards of the city, the next wards being canvassed will be Wards 2 and 13 on Saturday of this week. Air Raid Wardens, school children and other organizations to be announced later will assist the truck drivers.

The remaining dates in the scrap drive for the other wards of the city are as follows:

Wards 2 and 13—Saturday, October 17.
Ward 3—Saturday, October 24.
Ward 10 and 11—Saturday, October 31.
Wards 8 and 9—Saturday, November 7.
Wards 4 and 5—Saturday, November 14.
Wards 6 and 7—Saturday, November 21.

Pittsburgh Police Ask Shackles Be Used on Nazi Prisoners

Pittsburgh, Oct. 12 (AP)—Nearly 200 Pittsburgh policemen have donated their personally-owned handcuffs to the government for "probable use in shackling Axis prisoners," Police Superintendent Harvey J. Scott disclosed.

Scott visited precinct stations, asked for the donations, after receiving what he described as an "urgent request" for the handcuffs from the quartermaster's office in Washington. He said an army officer told him the handcuffs would be used on Axis prisoners "but did not specifically say German war prisoners in Canada."

Britain and Canada have started shackling 1,376 German war prisoners in retaliation for the fettering of the same number of empire prisoners in German prison camps.

Sixth Ward Dedicates Flag Honoring 101 Men

Clergymen and Officials Take Part in Special Ceremony on Lower Broadway Block

Kingston's first ward service flag—that of the Sixth ward—was dedicated with impressive ceremony on Sunday afternoon and now hangs on lower Broadway, between the Greenwald and Kraym buildings. It bears a huge star in the center and under it the numerals "101" denoting the number of men from the Sixth Ward now in the armed service.

There more than 1,000 persons gathered in the block on Broadway, between Abeel and Union streets that afternoon when the service was opened with the invocation by Rabbi Bernard Gershuny of the Congregation Agudas Achim.

The honor guest at the dedication was Mrs. William Dugan of 43 Newkirk avenue, who has four sons now in service, and who was presented with a bouquet by Robert Rhinehart in behalf of the residents of the ward. Mrs. Dugan said that it was a great honor to be able to give four sons to her country, all of whom had enlisted and there was a fifth son who would enter the service this week.

Representatives of the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths were present and participated in the dedication, with Mayor William F. Edelmuth as the principal speaker of the afternoon.

Others who spoke were the Rev. Benjamin C. Roth of St. Mary's Church; the Rev. Frank L. Gollnick of the Spring Street Lutheran Church; Lieut. Robinson McIlvane of the U. S. Navy, who dedicated the flag, and Alderman Paul Black who acted as master of ceremonies.

During the dedication service Florence Glassman on behalf of the B'nai B'rith Girls, presented Mayor Edelmuth with $30 which had been raised at a dance given by the girls for the benefit of the Service Men's Center.

Father Roth in his address said that he was personally acquainted with a large number of the men from the Sixth Ward who were now in the service and that the flag that was dedicated was not so much in honor of the boys as it was a symbol that everyone should dedicate himself to the task of seeing that the war is won as quickly as possible. He called attention to the special prayers said at St. Mary's Church not only for the men of Catholic faith but for all those in the service.

The mayor stressed the attempts of the Axis powers through the fifth column to disrupt unity in the country by setting one racial group against another. "We should be on our guard constantly" said the mayor "as only by unity can the three gangsters be crushed."

The Rev. Mr. Gollnick said that from personal experience he knew how the families of the men in service felt as he has three brothers overseas, and lost a brother in the first World War. We had the consolation of knowing, he said, that the God who watches over all regardless of their faith would look after the men in service as if they were present in our midst.

Lieut. McIlvane who dedicated the flag, spoke briefly and congratulated the Sixth Ward on the large number of men it had in the armed service.

The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Charles F. Kirton

Training Called Imperative

Lake Placid, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP)—At least 60,000 New York women must be given pre-employment training and 100,000 more enrolled in supplemental courses during the next year, the State Vocational Education Commissioner declared today. In a prepared address to state conference of vocational education directors, Oakley Furney asserted "the responsibility of the defense schools from now on is to train as many women as possible to take the places of men in war industries who are of draft age and must soon enter the army."

Controversy Is Afoot

Meriden, Conn., Oct. 12 (AP)—A controversy stirred here in the scrap drive because the Spanish American War Veterans donated "a saltador," a cannon captured from Morro Castle, Havana. Some residents contended the gun, cast in Seville in the 18th Century and lavishly decorated with hand engraving, should be saved. They suggested the city's five captured World War I cannon be donated instead.

Asks Use of Waterways

Washington,, Oct. 12 (AP)—Joseph B. Eastman, director of defense transportation, asked all shippers, including government agencies, today to use barge and other water transportation as much as possible to make more railroad facilities available for vital war shipments.

Pilots Say 12 Planes Are Seen on Deck of Ship Believed Carrying Craft to Islands

Lines Attacked

Japanese Supplies Hit in New Guinea by Allied Raiders

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Australia, Oct. 12 (AP)—Allied medium bombers, following up two successive night assaults by flying fortresses on the Japanese base at Rabaul, New Britain, heavily damaged a 10,000-ton seaplane tender southeast of that island yesterday, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Two direct hits were scored on the vessel, which when last seen was motionless and apparently badly crippled, the announcement said.

Pilots participating in the attack reported that 12 planes were visible on the upper deck of the tender and observers believed the craft might have been engaged in carrying planes to outlying Japanese bases—perhaps in the Solomons or in New Guinea, where enemy troops have been suffering from an acute lack of air support.

The tender was escorted by a destroyer, but the allied airmen apparently ignored it in order to concentrate on the larger vessel.

Other allied bombers, escorted by fighters, carried out another attack on Japanese overland supply lines in New Guinea between Kokoda and the coastal base of Buna.

"Supplies and enemy installations along the track were bombed and strafed, starting fires," the communique said. "Barges on the beach were machine-gunned."

No new developments were reported on the New Guinea land front, where allied forces now control the gap in the Owen Stanley mountains through which the Japanese retreated last week following the collapse of their drive on Port Moresby.

Allied advance elements were said to be maintaining contact with the Japanese but there were no reports of further fighting. A spokesman at allied headquarters declared there had been no indication that the allied advance had been slowed down by enemy resistance and that any delays were due to the difficulties of moving up supplies through the rugged terrain.

The Japanese supply problems in this theatre apparently have been greatly complicated by continuing aerial attacks upon their bases, such as the two latest assaults on Rabaul. A total of 100 tons of bombs were dropped in those attacks, which were said to have left Rabaul a smouldering mass of ruins and sent enemy troops scurrying to the hills.

Roosevelt Gives Assurance Victory Will Free Mankind

President's Columbus Day Statement Anticipates His Radio Address at 10 P. M.

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt, terming the war a conflict to determine "Whether the march of progress shall proceed or be halted by the totality of conquest," declared today that a United Nations victory will be "a victory for oppressed and enslaved people everywhere."

"Our cause is not only liberty for ourselves but liberation for others," he said in a Columbus Day statement.

Tonight, at 10 o'clock (Eastern War Time) the President will broadcast a report to the nation, and the White House said his talk would have "domestic as well as an international interest."

His Columbus Day statement follows:

It is four hundred and fifty years since Christopher Columbus first saw the new western world off his bow. He and his followers found a great expanse where new beginnings could be made, where men could steer their courses free of the fetters of tyranny and the encompassment of outworn institutions. In the wake of his courageous and unprecedented voyage there came to the Americas the seeking people of many countries—people who sought liberty, democracy, religious tolerance, the fuller life.

This was the American experiment, a bold experiment and successful. our immigrant ancestors, yours and mine, made it successful.

But now the free nations we created on two continents, the very liberties we made law, are endangered by destructive forces from without. We are in the midst of mankind's greatest war, a war to determine whether the march of progress shall proceed or be

Tuesday Chosen

Start Now, Mayor Says

New York, Oct. 12 (AP)—Mayor La Guardia wants New York city to show its heels to the rest of the country in the matter of meatless days, and—like President Wilson—he picks Tuesday.

In his weekly broadcast yesterday, he asked hotels, restaurants and housewives to start the meatless ball rolling right away.

Regarding talk of having meatless Fridays, he declared:

"Friday is the traditional fish day, and to make Friday your official meatless day sort of smacks of the slicker, doesn't it?

"Now, let's do things real here in New York city. We don't want to be hypocritical about this. Let us give the example to the rest of the country."

Tuesday became meatless in the last war by proclamation of President Wilson on January 27, 1918—months after hotels had inaugurated "beefless Tuesdays" and "porkless Saturdays."

Anglo Censorship Permits Publicity

Principle Followed Is That More News People Get, Better Their Morale

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

London, Oct. 12 — The British censorship of news—which, to say the least, is one of the most liberal of the many under which I have worked in countries of both hemispheres—is based on the philosophy that the wartime morale of a nation is in direct ratio to the amount of information the public gets, especially from the battlefields.

Since this principle obviously is producing amazingly fine results in John Bull's domains, it encourages me to reiterate here the view I expressed not long before leaving New York on this trip.

It is this:

The way we Americans can get the real feel of the war, which up to now has been so far away from us, is to transport us through the press into the heat of battle. Let the home folk in spirit fight by teh side of our boys and bleed with them and die with them. This may be achieved by reporting the news fully while it is hot—not in filtered form a week or a month after the ashes are cold.

I quickly discovered that this is one of the tenets of the British censorship when I turned for enlightenment to Minister of Information Brendan Bracken and later to the chief censor, Rear Admiral G. P. Thomson. Of course one of the problems of Messrs. Bracken and Thomson—and I dare say this is equally true in some other countries with which we are very familiar—is that the two are merely go-betweens for the armed services and the public.

That is to say, censorship of news relating to operations originates with the navy, army or air force. Now fighting branches are notoriously inclined to maintain silence. Admiral Thomson, a jolly seadog who has had a long and

City's Two-Day Registration Totals 4,614 With Two Districts Missing

With two election districts in the city failing to report the registration for Saturday, there was a total of 2,181 men and women registered that day in Kingston, making a total — with two districts missing—of 4,614 for the first two days of registration.

The remaining two days of registration in Kingston are next Friday and Saturday.

In 1940 the first two days of registration totaled 8,153, while in 1941 it totaled 5,052 for the same period.

The total registration for the four days in 1940 was 16,125, and in 1941 it was 14,032.

The registration this year for the first two days shows an approximate decrease of about 200, and may largely be due to the fact that approximately 1,200 young men of voting age are now in the armed service of the country.

The registration by districts as reported to police headquarters at the close of registration Saturday follows:

Government Balks High War Prices For U. S. Growers

Quotations on Grain May Be Less Than Half of 1917 Prices; Other Items to Drop

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP)—Farmers' hopes of once again seeing high prices such as they received for produce during the last war and post-war period had glimmered into virtual extinction today as a result of strengthened government anti-inflation control.

Although no actual price ceilings have been placed on many major farm commodities, the government has power to do so and already has moved vigorously to limit farm prices indirectly through control of processed foods.

Thus, farmers can see as possible limits for their grain prices quotations equal to less than half those reached a quarter century ago. Livestock ceilings may be anywhere from $4 to $8 per hundredweight lower. Butter and eggs likewise will be sharply lower.

Actually, an emergency ruling for ceilings on such foods as flour, dairy products and eggs has had the effect of limiting prices of unprocessed farm products below levels prescribed by the law, market experts here said.

This does not mean that the first attempt in history to halt the rise of prices of the nation's major industry will leave farm income to suffer. In fact, partly because American farmers have more than compensated for price limitation by much greater production, 1942 cash income from marketings and government payments may be near $15,000,000,000, topping the previous record of $14,600,000,000 in 1919, when farm population was only slightly larger than it is now. Another billion dollars may be added to agricultural income in 1943, economists predict, if everything goes well.

Even though they will be far short of first World War peaks, farm prices which the government has been empowered to fix as ceilings are around the best general level in years. Theoretically, ceilings which can be imposed will be no lower than parity or peaks up to September 15 this year.

The following table is an attempt to convert to a Chicago price basis, with which farmers are most familiar, approximate ceilings which have been or could be placed on major commodities for purposes only of comparing them with World War 1 peaks. The ceilings given do not take into account seasonal fluctuations in some cases or arbitrary adjustments within the power of the government.

	Ceiling	Sat. Price	W.W. Peak
Wheat, bu.	$ 1.52	$ 1.24	$ 3.50
Corn, bu.	1.07	.80	2.36

Rye, bu.	1.21	.67	2.95
Hogs, 100 lbs.	15.30	15.65	23.60
Cattle, 100 lbs.	17.25	17.00	21.50

Hitler Halts Land Assaults on Vital Volga City; Nazis Time Table Upset

Churchill Speaks

Prime Minister Says August, September Saw Great Gains

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
(Associated Press War Editor)

At the end of seven weeks of terrific attack and epic defense, the indomitable defenders of Stalingrad have forced the Germans by the sheer tax on flesh and blood to halt mass troop assaults on that ruined but strategically valuable city.

With signs of a great defensive victory emerging, the Russians themselves reported capture of "advantageous positions" in their flanking action northwest of Stalingrad—to the further peril of the immobile Germans—as well as gains by counter-attack in the Mozdok area of the Caucasus.

Adolf Hitler's time table for 1942 seems to have been beautifully scrambled.

With a mixture of belligerence and confidence in the future, Prime Minister Churchill told an Edinburgh audience today that Russia, China, the United States and Britain were moving "steadily onward from strength to strength" while Hitler's prospects have darkened to an immeasurable degree."

Churchill pictured August and September as months of great strategic developments in the allies' favor:

They were "the least bad months" of the year for allied shipping losses, he said, and new construction outweighs the German U-boat successes.

They "marked the definite growth of allied air superiority" with the R.A.F. dropping its "greatest tonnage" of bombs on Germany.

They brought "the most numerous safe arrivals of U. S. troops in the British Isles."

For the third day the Germans and their puppets were largely confined to artillery and air assaults on Stalingrad. The Russian communique said that artillery and mortar duelling continued in the immediate Stalingrad area. The Germans actually had won positions inside the Volga city but failed to reach the river.

The reiterative thump of the German minewerfer and the grumble of siege cannon while Axis troops dug in to hold their Stalingrad wedges were nothing like the fuehrer intended when on September 30 he declared:

"We shall take Stalingrad, you may depend on that."

Even then 15 days had passed since the Germans announced that the battle of Stalingrad had entered its "final phase."

Typical of the price levied by the Russians on the Germans' mad effort to save the Fuehrer's face at Stalingrad was today's communique report that two companies of German troops were wiped out when the Germans attacked the outskirts of a Stalingrad workers' settlement.

This German action nowise ranked with the strength of previous mass assaults.

For the first time in weeks the Stalingrad battle took a secondary place in the Russian communique—the Germans had been playing it down for days. The Russian communique took a broad approach by reporting continuing action on the whole Russian-German front.

In the Caucasus the Germans

Chief of Outlawed Irish Republican Army Is Held for Internment

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Oct. 12 (AP)—Police of Northern Ireland announced today that Hugh McAteer, whom they identified as chief of staff of the outlawed Irish Republican army for all Ireland, had been arrested and was being held for internment under the special powers act. No charges are necessary under this act.

McAteer, 25, was released 12 months ago after serving a six-year term for possessing fire arms and explosives.

At the time of his latest arrest police said that three other men, including a father and son, were taken into custody for possession of firearms.

McAteer, son of a respectable middle class family with a brother in the British customs service, was seized near Londonderry in a house where a large quantity of explosives and I. R. A. literature were found, police reported.

He called attention to the special prayers said at St. Mary's Church not only for the men of Catholic faith but for all those in the service.

The mayor stressed the attempts of the Axis powers through the fifth column to disrupt unity in the country by setting one racial group against another. "We should be on our guard constantly" said the mayor "as only by unity can the three gangsters be crushed."

The Rev. Mr. Gollnick said that from personal experience he knew how the families of the men in service felt as he has three brothers overseas, and lost a brother in the first World War. We had the consolation of knowing, he said, that the God who watches over all regardless of their faith would look after the men in service as if they were present in our midst.

Lieut. McIlvane who dedicated the flag, spoke briefly and congratulated the Sixth Ward on the large number of men it had in the armed service.

Training Called Imperative

Lake Placid, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP)—At least 60,000 New York women must be given pre-employment training and 100,000 more enrolled in supplemental courses during the next year, the State Vocational Education Commissioner declared today. In a prepared address to state conference of vocational education directors, Oakley Furney asserted "the responsibility of the defense schools from now on is to train as many women as possible to take the places of men in war industries who are of draft age and must soon enter the army."

Controversy Is Afoot

Meriden, Conn., Oct. 12 (AP)—A controversy stirred here in the scrap drive because the Spanish American War Veterans donated "a saltador," a cannon captured from Morro Castle, Havana. Some residents contended the gun, cast in Seville in the 18th Century and lavishly decorated with hand engraving, should be saved. They suggested the city's five captured World War I cannon be donated instead.

Asks Use of Waterways

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—Joseph B. Eastman, director of defense transportation, asked all shippers, including government agencies, today to use barge and other water transportation as much as possible to make more railroad facilities available for vital war shipments.

Pilots Say 12 Planes Are Seen on Deck of Ship Believed Carrying Craft to Islands

Lines Attacked

Japanese Supplies Hit in New Guinea by Allied Raiders

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Australia, Oct. 12 (AP)—Allied medium bombers, following up two successive night assaults by flying fortresses on the Japanese base at Rabaul, New Britain, heavily damaged a 10,000-ton seaplane tender southeast of that island yesterday, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Two direct hits were scored on the vessel, which when last seen was motionless and apparently badly crippled, the announcement said.

Pilots participating in the attack reported that 12 planes were visible on the upper deck of the tender and observers believed the craft might have been engaged in carrying planes to outlying Japanese bases—perhaps in the Solomons or in New Guinea, where enemy troops have been suffering from an acute lack of air support.

The tender was escorted by a destroyer, but the allied airmen apparently ignored it in order to concentrate on the larger vessel.

Other allied bombers, escorted by fighters, carried out another attack on Japanese overland supply lines in New Guinea between Kokoda and the coastal base of Buna.

"Supplies and enemy installations along the track were bombed and strafed, starting fires," the communique said. "Barges on the beach were machine-gunned."

No new developments were reported on the New Guinea land front, where allied forces now control the gap in the Owen Stanley mountains through which the Japanese retreated last week following the collapse of their drive on Port Moresby.

Allied advance elements were said to be maintaining contact with the Japanese but there were no reports of further fighting. A spokesman at allied headquarters declared there had been no indication that the allied advance had been slowed down by enemy resistance and that any delays were due to the difficulties of moving up supplies through the rugged terrain.

The Japanese supply problems in this theatre apparently have been greatly complicated by continuing aerial attacks upon their bases, such as the two latest assaults on Rabaul. A total of 100 tons of bombs were dropped in those attacks, which were said to have left Rabaul a smouldering mass of ruins and sent enemy troops scurrying to the hills.

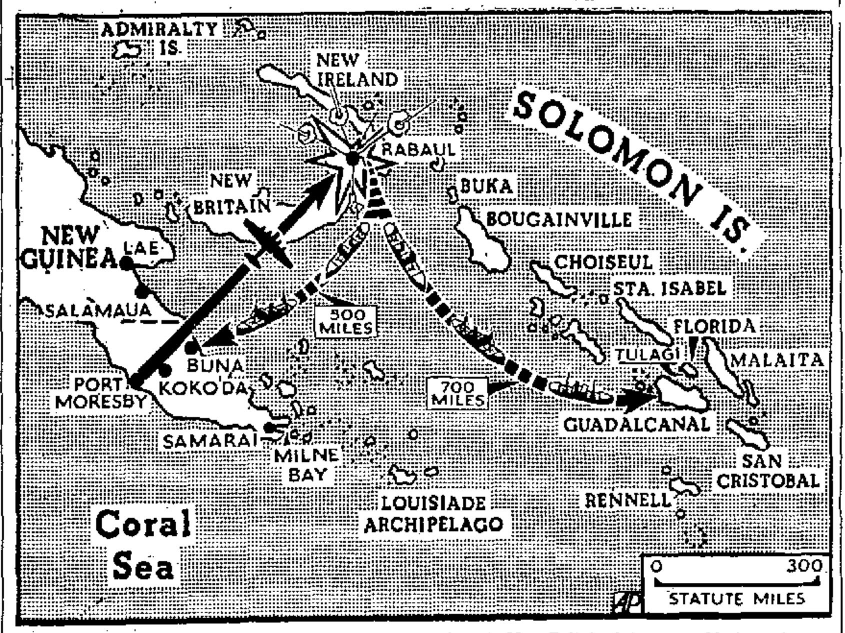
Allied Bombers Blast Jap Supply Base



Allied bombers have turned Rabaul, important Jap base in New Britain, into a smouldering ruin as a result of successive raids to complicate the Nipponese supply and reinforcement problems in New Guinea and on Guadalcanal Island. Rabaul is the supply base for both war theatres. Ship lines show the Jap supply routes and the approximate distances.

Roosevelt Gives Assurance Victory Will Free Mankind

President's Columbus Day Statement Anticipates His Radio Address at 10 P. M.

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt, terming the war a conflict to determine "Whether the march of progress shall proceed or be halted by the totality of conquest," declared today that a United Nations victory will be "a victory for oppressed and enslaved people everywhere."

"Our cause is not only liberty for ourselves but liberation for others," he said in a Columbus Day statement.

Tonight, at 10 o'clock (Eastern War Time) the President will broadcast a report to the nation, and the White House said his talk would have "domestic as well as an international interest."

His Columbus Day statement follows:

It is four hundred and fifty years since Christopher Columbus first saw the new western world off his bow. He and his followers found a great expanse where new beginnings could be made, where men could steer their courses free of the fetters of tyranny and the encompassment of outworn institutions. In the wake of his courageous and unprecedented voyage there came to the Americas the seeking people of many countries—people who sought liberty, democracy, religious tolerance, the fuller life.

This was the American experiment, a bold experiment and successful. our immigrant ancestors, yours and mine, made it successful.

But now the free nations we created on two continents, the very liberties we made law, are endangered by destructive forces from without. We are in the midst of mankind's greatest war, a war to determine whether the march of progress shall proceed or be

City's Two-Day Registration Totals 4,614 With Two Districts Missing

With two election districts in the city failing to report the registration for Saturday, there was a total of 2,181 men and women registered that day in Kingston, making a total — with two districts missing—of 4,614 for the first two days of registration.

The remaining two days of registration in Kingston are next Friday and Saturday.

In 1940 the first two days of registration totaled 8,153, while in 1941 it totaled 5,052 for the same period.

The total registration for the four days in 1940 was 16,125, and in 1941 it was 14,032.

The registration this year for the first two days shows an approximate decrease of about 200, and may largely be due to the fact that approximately 1,200 young men of voting age are now in the armed service of the country.

The registration by districts as reported to police headquarters at the close of registration Saturday follows:

Start Now, Mayor Says

New York, Oct. 12 (AP)—Mayor La Guardia wants New York city to show its heels to the rest of the country in the matter of meatless days, and—like President Wilson—he picks Tuesday.

In his weekly broadcast yesterday, he asked hotels, restaurants and housewives to start the meatless ball rolling right away.

Regarding talk of having meatless Fridays, he declared:

"Friday is the traditional fish day, and to make Friday your official meatless day sort of smacks of the slicker, doesn't it?

"Now, let's do things real here in New York city. We don't want to be hypocritical about this. Let us give the example to the rest of the country."

Tuesday became meatless in the last war by proclamation of President Wilson on January 27, 1918—months after hotels had inaugurated "beefless Tuesdays" and "porkless Saturdays."

Anglo Censorship Permits Publicity

(Wide World War Analyst)

London, Oct. 12 — The British censorship of news—which, to say the least, is one of the most liberal of the many under which I have worked in countries of both hemispheres—is based on the philosophy that the wartime morale of a nation is in direct ratio to the amount of information the public gets, especially from the battlefields.

Since this principle obviously is producing amazingly fine results in John Bull's domains, it encourages me to reiterate here the view I expressed not long before leaving New York on this trip.

It is this:

The way we Americans can get the real feel of the war, which up to now has been so far away from us, is to transport us through the press into the heat of battle. Let the home folk in spirit fight by the side of our boys and bleed with them and die with them. This may be achieved by reporting the news fully while it is hot—not in filtered form a week or a month after the ashes are cold.

I quickly discovered that this is one of the tenets of the British censorship when I turned for enlightenment to Minister of Information Brendan Bracken and later to the chief censor, Rear Admiral G. P. Thomson. Of course one of the problems of Messrs. Bracken and Thomson—and I dare say this is equally true in some other countries with which we are very familiar—is that the two are merely go-betweens for the armed services and the public.

That is to say, censorship of news relating to operations originates with the navy, army or air force. Now fighting branches are notoriously inclined to maintain silence. Admiral Thomson, a jolly seadog who has had a long and

Quotations on Grain May Be Less Than Half of 1917 Prices; Other Items to Drop

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP)—Farmers' hopes of once again seeing high prices such as they received for produce during the last war and post-war period had glimmered into virtual extinction today as a result of strengthened government anti-inflation control.

Although no actual price ceilings have been placed on many major farm commodities, the government has power to do so and already has moved vigorously to limit farm prices indirectly through control of processed foods.

Thus, farmers can see as possible limits for their grain prices quotations equal to less than half those reached a quarter century ago. Livestock ceilings may be anywhere from $4 to $8 per hundredweight lower. Butter and eggs likewise will be sharply lower.

Actually, an emergency ruling for ceilings on such foods as flour, dairy products and eggs has had the effect of limiting prices of unprocessed farm products below levels prescribed by the law, market experts here said.

This does not mean that the first attempt in history to halt the rise of prices of the nation's major industry will leave farm income to suffer. In fact, partly because American farmers have more than compensated for price limitation by much greater production, 1942 cash income from marketings and government payments may be near $15,000,000,000, topping the previous record of $14,600,000,000 in 1919, when farm population was only slightly larger than it is now. Another billion dollars may be added to agricultural income in 1943, economists predict, if everything goes well.

Even though they will be far short of first World War peaks, farm prices which the government has been empowered to fix as ceilings are around the best general level in years. Theoretically, ceilings which can be imposed will be no lower than parity or peaks up to September 15 this year.

The following table is an attempt to convert to a Chicago price basis, with which farmers are most familiar, approximate ceilings which have been or could be placed on major commodities for purposes only of comparing them with World War 1 peaks. The ceilings given do not take into account seasonal fluctuations in some cases or arbitrary adjustments within the power of the government.

	Ceiling	Est. Price	W.W. Peak
Wheat, bu.	$ 1.52	$ 1.24	$ 3.50
Corn, bu.	1.07	.80	2.35

Cattle, 100 lbs.	17.25	17.00	21.50

Hitler Halts Land Assaults on Vital Volga City; Nazis Time Table Upset

Churchill Speaks

Prime Minister Says August, September Saw Great Gains

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
(Associated Press War Editor)

At the end of seven weeks of terrific attack and epic defense, the indomitable defenders of Stalingrad have forced the Germans by the sheer tax on flesh and blood to halt mass troop assaults on that ruined but strategically valuable city.

With signs of a great defensive victory emerging, the Russians themselves reported capture of "advantageous positions" in their flanking action northwest of Stalingrad—to the further peril of the immobile Germans—as well as gains by counter-attack in the Mozdok area of the Caucasus.

Adolf Hitler's time table for 1942 seems to have been beautifully scrambled.

With a mixture of belligerence and confidence in the future, Prime Minister Churchill told an Edinburgh audience today that Russia, China, the United States and Britain were moving "steadily onward from strength to strength" while Hitler's prospects have darkened to an immeasurable degree."

Churchill pictured August and September as months of great strategic developments in the allies' favor:

They were "the least bad months" of the year for allied shipping losses, he said, and new construction outweighs the German U-boat successes.

They "marked the definite growth of allied air superiority" with the R.A.F. dropping its "greatest tonnage" of bombs on Germany.

They brought "the most numerous safe arrivals of U. S. troops in the British Isles."

For the third day the Germans and their puppets were largely confined to artillery and air assaults on Stalingrad. The Russian communique said that artillery and mortar duelling continued in the immediate Stalingrad area. The Germans actually had won positions inside the Volga city but failed to reach the river.

The reiterative thump of the German minewerfer and the grumble of siege cannon while Axis troops dug in to hold their Stalingrad wedges were nothing like the fuehrer intended when on September 30 he declared:

"We shall take Stalingrad, you may depend on that."

Even then 15 days had passed since the Germans announced that the battle of Stalingrad had entered its "final phase."

Typical of the price levied by the Russians on the Germans' mad effort to save the Fuehrer's face at Stalingrad was today's communique report that two companies of German troops were wiped out when the Germans attacked the outskirts of a Stalingrad workers' settlement.

This German action nowise ranked with the strength of previous mass assaults.

For the first time in weeks the Stalingrad battle took a secondary place in the Russian communique—the Germans had been playing it down for days. The Russian communique took a broad approach by reporting continuing action on the whole Russian-German front.

In the Caucasus the Germans

Leader Is Seized

Chief of Outlawed Irish Republican Army Is Held for Internment

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Oct. 12 (AP)—Police of Northern Ireland announced today that Hugh McAteer, whom they identified as chief of staff of the outlawed Irish Republican army for all Ireland, had been arrested and was being held for internment under the special powers act. No charges are necessary under this act.

McAteer, 25, was released 12 months ago after serving a six-year term for possessing fire arms and explosives.

At the time of his latest arrest police said that three other men, including a father and son, were taken into custody for possession of firearms.

McAteer, son of a respectable middle class family with a brother in the British customs service, was seized near Londonderry in a house where a large quantity of explosives and I. R. A. literature were found, police reported.

Dewey and Bennett Open Their Bids for Governorship

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP)—New York's two major party gubernatorial candidates, opening major upstate campaigns this week, are expected to reiterate pleas for citizens to qualify for voting to overcome the decided lag in registrations this year compared to 1940 and 1938.

Latest available registration figures for the November 3 election shows a decline throughout the state. New York city, closing its vote-qualifying books, reports 2,135,710 or 1,254,750 less than in 1940 and 298,266 under 1938. All but one upstate city, Binghamton, reported drops, some as high as 15 per cent.

Two days, Friday and Saturday, remain for registration in upstate communities with populations of 5,000 and larger. Voters may qualify Friday from 10 a. m., to 10 p. m., and Saturday from 7 a. m., to 10 p. m.

In smaller communities, where registration is non-personal, voters may qualify Saturday from 1 to 10 p. m.

Meanwhile, John J. Bennett, Jr., Democratic candidate for governor, opens his major election drive with stops today at Batavia, Albion, Lockport and Niagara Falls, the start of an entire week of upstate campaigning.

Thomas E. Dewey, his Republican rival, gets under way Wednesday at Rochester. Dewey, meeting with Watertown area Republicans Saturday at the conclusion of a two-day northern New York swing, expressed agreement with President Roosevelt's recent statement that the proposed St. Lawrence river power project should be deferred until after the war.

Declaring he "always strongly advocated development of the state's power resources for the benefit of all the people," Dewey added, "the President said that this is a military decision and that men and materials will not be available until after the war."

Bennett has urged immediate launching of the project.

The two major party nominees and others of the six gubernatorial candidates and their party leaders continued to place major emphasis on the need to register, attributing the decline in tabulations to the number of men and women in the armed forces, the shift of rural residents to city war industry work, gasoline and tire rationing and public apathy.

Governor Lehman also has appealed to citizens to register.

State Democratic Chairman, James A. Farley, saw in New York city registration developments assurance of "more than the usual Democratic plurality" in the state's largest city and continued confident Bennett would cut Dewey's 1938 upstate plurality to 250,000 votes.

State Comptroller Joseph V. O'Leary, candidate for reelection on both Democratic and American Labor party tickets, speaking in Buffalo yesterday, pointed to what he termed "an alarming increase in juvenile delinquency". caused by "the wholesale disruption of our normal ways of life," and added:

"If we have a wholesale exodus of mothers from homes into factories or civilian occupations, we will be weakening to a dangerous degree the inner strength in America."

Jeffers Defends Order on Rayon

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—Rubber Administrator William M. Jeffers told farm state senators today "we have gambled too damned long" already on the rubber situation in defending a W.P.B. order to substitute rayon for cotton in heavy tire manufacture.

Despite a bombardment of questions from members of the agricultural committee, most of whom were critical of the change, Jeffers declared that if rayon did a "better job" than cotton "then I am for rayon."

"So far as I am concerned, and make no mistake about it," he continued, "I am not influenced by anybody or anyone."

Senator McEkllar (D.-Tenn.), contended that seven of the nine members of a W.P.B. advisory board which recommended the substitution were tire manufacturers and others interested in rayon.

Jeffers said he did not know whether that was correct, but "I'm assuming that in a war that you can trust Americans."

He asserted that expansion of rayon facilities would require a year to complete while tests of cotton were continuing.

"If cotton will do the better job," he added, "I am for cotton."

In the meantime, Jeffers said, the rayon expansion would proceed as "we've been gambling too damned long on this situation—that's what's the matter with this situation."

Private Will Hang

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 12 (AP)—Pvt. Francis A. Lines of Detroit, convicted by a general court martial of raping a 12-year-old girl, is under sentence to hang for the crime, the first American soldier to be sentenced to death in continental United States since the start of the war. The 27-year-old soldier was accused of threatening the girl with a knife and forcing her to accompany him to a railroad gondola car. A small hunting knife was found in his possession.

Roads Are Blocked In Michigan in Hunt for Mobsters

Paw Paw, Mich., Oct. 12 (AP)—State police and sheriff's officers clamped a road blockade on southwestern Michigan following a motorist's report the desperado, Roger Touchy, and four or five companions in a car threatened him with a tommy gun near here at 5 a. m. today.

The informant, Erving White, 35, Paw Paw creamery operator, said no shots were fired but that an occupant of the car silently aimed the weapon at him as he drove from a side-road and his headlights shone on the desperadoes' car, which evidently was having motor trouble.

White said he was "positive" one of the men was Touhy, and the convicted kidnaper, a fugitive with six other men from the Stateville, Ill., State Penitentiary, carried a holstered pistol at his hip. Officers at the Paw Paw post reported they had been unable thus far to pick up the trail, but that "this looks like a very hot tip."

White said he could not distinguish the serial numbers on the car's Illinois license plates, but that after it sped away he followed for about two miles and informed state police they had headed into U.S.-12 in the direction of Benton Harbor.

SNAPSHOTS

Last night we spent an hour or so
Reviewing scenes of long ago
And briefly lived the parts again
That love conceived with Cupid's pen.

The play began with only two—
The scene—a lake—and one canoe;
'Twas there we dreamed, that lazy June
And shyly planned our honeymoon.

The scene has changed—a year has gone
And next we view a crowded lawn
Where everyone's expression tells
The tale of Cupid's wedding bells.

A dozen snaps await us here
To follow through a happy year
And now another page we scan
That introduces Mary Ann.

The final act includes Berenice
And there the snapshot stories cease;
The hour is done, and Cupid's play
Fades slowly back to yesterday.

still were striving to take the valuable Grozny oil fields southeast of Mozdok, but the Russians reported a counterstroke with which they disrupted the German offensive and recaptured defense positions.

The Russians were reported advancing also in the zone southeast of Novorossisk, Black Sea port which the Germans now hold, storming a town house-by-house after the German garrison was surrounded. American-made jeeps were delivering anti-aircraft guns to the Caucasus front.

The Germans said that Russian forces encircled on the road to Tuapse, another Caucasus port on the Black Sea, southeast of Novorossisk, had been "annihilated."

The Hitler command also reported that a Russian group was "annihilated" in Stalingrad. That was the only direct mention of Stalingrad.

On the Volga, its communique said, a medium-sized vessel was sunk by shellfire and airmen "continued the destruction of an important railway line east of the river Volga."

Nazi Aviation Week

While Stalingrad seemed more than German ground forces could handle, the air battle of western Europe had demonstrated the weakness of German aviation against the mounting bombing power and fighter-bomber tactics of the British and Americans.

Last Friday's daylight raid on the German-held Lille area in which United States Flying Fortresses and Liberators accounted for 105 German fighters—48 destroyed, 38 probably destroyed and 19 damaged — demonstrated this point.

The fighter escort of the Lille raiders, working at times for entrapment of the German planes in bomber-fighter crossfire and at other times as decoys to draw the Germans away, was credited with an additional five German planes destroyed.

The newest developments in the air war include yesterday's daylight forays by the British against targets in northwestern Germany, principally Hannover, and in occupied France. It was the 43rd attack on Hannover, a railway and industrial center of about a half-million population.

A small number of German raiders made their first night attack on Britain since September 26 when they bombed scattered localities on the northeast coast last night, causing some casualties and damage.

The war in North Africa remained essentially a race between the Axis and the United Nations to build up the striking force and reservoir of supplies necessary for an offensive step. Designed to disrupt the Axis preparations, the Allied air offensive continued.

The next battle of North Africa promises to be a crucial test of the respective merits of American and German arms. Moreover, it had become apparent to correspondents in Egypt that Marshal Rommel will find more representatives of the United Nations arrayed against the Axis than ever before.

As for the present land action, the British reported only patrol activities and Axis reports agreed. In the air, however, heavy bombers attacked Bengasi, Axis Libyan port, on Saturday and Rommel's intermediate supply base, Tymbaki, Crete, on Saturday night.

Shipping Is Attacked

On Sunday United States heavy bombers, engaged with the British in a continuous war on Axis shipping, struck two freighters of about 8,000 tons, escorted by three destroyers off the coast of the occupied Greek Island of Crete. They also shot down three Axis planes, one third of the intercepting force —all within the space of a few minutes.

Also in the eastern Mediterranean, the British were credited with a direct heavy bomb hit on one enemy destroyer—probably Italian—and two near misses on another. The British attack was delivered at night.

There was an increase in air activity over Malta, the enemy carrying out five heavily escorted bomber raids, but the defenders of the British Mediterranean isle destroyed at least 15 of the attackers and damaged many more as against the loss of one fighter.

This was the only Allied loss reported. The Italians nevertheless claimed that seven Allied planes were downed over Egypt yesterday and that 15 more were restroyed over Malta as against the loss of three Axis planes.

Churchill's Edinburgh speech today was a broad review of the war and included the statement that "the Australians, with their American Allies, have made a good advance in New Guinea."

He referred to the pursuit of Japanese forces which only a few days ago were less than 40 miles from Port Moresby, Allied base on New Guinea's southern short facing Australia.

The foe now has been driven back across New Guinea's mountain divide, about 70 miles from Port Moresby. Japanese and installations between their north shore base, Buna, and Kokoda are being reeatedly bombed and machine-gunned from the air.

Meanwhile Allied bombers, having laid waste to Rabaul, New Britain, a Japanese base on the island front facing Australia, in two successive night assaults, scored two direct hits on a 10,000-ton Japanese seaplane tender southeast of New Britain on Sunday. The vessel when last observed was motionless and apparently severely crippled.

Twelve planes were visible on the tender's deck when the attack was delivered so it was likely that the raiders put a crimp in Japanese efforts to bolster the air support for its invasion forces in New Guinea, the Solomons or elsewhere.

America's Forces Will Go Into Four Theatres of War

Twin Barriers of Time and Distance Shoved Aside to Get Job Done at Once

(Don Whitehead and Thoburn Wiant, formerly members of the Associated Press staff in New York, have joined the AP staff of war correspondents in the Middle East. In their first dispatch they tell of the United States' growing power branching from that war theatre.)

By DON WHITEHEAD AND THOBURN WIANT

Cairo, Oct. 12 (AP)—America's armed forces are shoving aside the twin barriers of time and distance to pour a rising tide of men and materials into four vital fronts of the second World War—the Middle East, Russia, India and China.

America is on the move in Africa.

That's what we saw on a 10,000-mile journey by air from the United States to this city in the Valley of the Nile about 150 miles from the Egyptian desert battlefront.

Tough, tanned Americans fresh from battle training and technical schooling back home are ripping apart jungles and establishing new bases in the blazing heat of the desert in preparation for the day when United Nations forces will move to drive Rommell's armies from North Africa.

In Desert Heat

The movement of men, munitions, tanks and planes by land, sea and air has not yet reached flood tide.

The desert front is the immediate scene of action, nevertheless United Nations forces are keeping a wary eye cocked on relations between Berlin and Vichy. There is more than academic interest in Vichy's attitude.

Speed has been the keynote of the American move into Africa.

There are many little Americas in Africa—places which have conveniences such as electric lights, running water, showers, ice and cold beer. These things might be classed by some as unnecessary luxuries but they are permanent fixtures which demonstrate that the Americans have arrived.

At one stop we looked with amazement upon what might have been an encampment somewhere in the United States. Yet we were told its site was wild and totally undeveloped only a few months ago.

There were rows of modern barracks. Each had electric lights, running water, showers and good beds. They reminded us of college dormitories.

Paved Roads

Winding through jungles were miles of paved roads. Desks, chairs, tables and even waste paper baskets were made of solid mahogany — so plentiful that it was used also in floors, walls and rafters.

The men smoked American cigarettes. There was plenty of American food. The army does everything to feed the men well. It is a bit surprising to sit at a mess in a remote camp and be served a good steak, baked beans, green salad, coffee and cake.

We were impressed by the morale of men everywhere we went. We heard occasional griping but the gripes were mostly those you would hear anywhere along the streets back home. What they want most is action.

We found health conditions excellent. Every safeguard has been taken on a past, present and future basis. Before troops moved into any camp medical officers surveyed the area for miles around and took every known precaution against malaria and other prevalent diseases.

Long before a spade was turned plans for encampments were blueprinted in the United States. But engineers came up against problems not solved by blueprints. That is where ingenuity played a big part. When necessary they improvised. Often they used native methods such as constructing light, airy buildings of native materials which required no priorities.

Not a nail was used in some of these structures. Sidewalls, supports and roof poles were lashed with strong fibers obtained from the jungle. Roofs were thatched.

But while they have Americanized their bases as much as possible with movies for entertainment, most of the lads we saw still looked upon Africa as a strange and awesome continent. They were hungry for news from home.

These Americans are in Africa to do a job—but they want to get it finished.

As one soldier put it "I want to stick my feet under Mom's table as soon as possible and have a mess of fried chicken, hot biscuits, country ham, four eggs sunny side up and some of her good freckle-face gravy. So let's get going."

Three Are Injured In Rail Mishap

Pennsylvania Main Line Is Blocked for Hours by Derailment

Monmouth Junction, N. J., Oct. 12 (AP)—Four tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad main line were blocked for three hours last night when the three rear cars of a Washington bound passenger train left the rails in a mishap that brought injuries to three persons.

The injured, all treated at Princeton Hospital, five miles from here, were identified by railroad officials as:

Louis Nadler, 52, of Philadelphia, shock and possible fracture of the spine.

Jacob Frageman, 59, of Philadelphia, cut on left knee.

Thirty-seven trains were delayed by the derailment and thousands of persons were left standing in Pennsylvania stations at New York, Newark and Philadelphia waiting for their trains to get through.

As 25 trains accumulated in the vicinity of New Brunswick, passengers left the cars and walked beside the tracks to ease the strain of waiting for service to resume.

In New York, more than 100 detectives and police were sent to Pennsylvania Station to answer questions of stranded travelers about the delay. Included in the throng estimated at 5,000 persons jammed in the station were many soldiers and sailors bound on furloughs or back to their stations.

Similar situations existed in Newark and at the Broad street, 30th street and North Philadelphia stations in Philadelphia.

The train, an extra section of No. 177, had left New York for the Capital at 5:30 p. m. (Eastern War Time.) The accident occurred at 6:06 p. m., 300 feet west of the midway signal tower.

After 45 minutes, the three derailed cars were disconnected and the train continued to Washington. The tracks remained blocked however for another two and a quarter hours.

New Levy Plans May Be Drafted By U. S. Treasury

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—The treasury may recommend increases in social security payroll levies, linked with a stiff spending tax, in a new financing program to be submitted to Congress after action is completed on the pending revenue bill.

The new tax measure, called "a very notable contribution to the tax system" by Chairman George (D-Ga) of the Senate Finance Committee, went to the House today where a conference committee was expected to be appointed to meet tomorrow with seven senators to begin the work of bringing into line the conflicting versions passed by the two chambers.

George expressed hope this committee might finish its work within a week and Congress already had notice from Secretary of The Treasury Morgenthau that he would be back on Capitol Hill with a request for an additional $6,000,000,000 in taxes as soon as the present measure was signed by the President.

While Morgenthau has not said what form he expected these levies to take, Senator Byrd (D-Va) said he looked for revival of a spending tax proposal, once rejected by a 12 to 0 vote of the finance committee.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) expressed a belief that the treasury might attempt to combine such a tax with a proposed increase in social security levies in a new war financing program.

This prospect brought a declaration from Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) that the treasury would find rough going if it made any attempt to finance war expenditures by increasing social security taxes above their present level of 1 per cent each on employers and employes.

Vandenberg led a successful fight for Senate adoption last week of an amendment freezing these levies at the present rate for 1943, despite an appeal by President Roosevelt that they be permitted to increase to a total of 4 per cent beginning Jan. 1, as Congress originally had contemplated.

Several Arrests Come as Result Of Labor Trouble

Saugerties had several arrests during the past week as a result of the labor trouble at the plant of Kellburn Manufacturing Co., where a majority of the employes staged a walk-out September 18, it was learned today. The plant manufactures tents and other canvas articles for the army, and, it is said, has contracts sufficient to keep it busy until 1944.

Captain Richter, Saugerties chief of police, said this morning that there had been six or seven arrests of former workers on charges of assault, third degree. It was stated that the arrests followed interference by pickets with those who are at present working in the plant, the charges including kicking, striking and fighting tactics generally. None of the cases are said to be too bad, so far as actual damage done is concerned.

The persons arrested are to be arraigned before Police Justice Ernest E. Schirmer, the hearings being set down for varying dates during the next week or two.

Previous to the walk-out on September 18 the plant employed considerably over 100 workers, whereas it is reported that at present only about 30 are working in the plant.

At an N. L. R. B. hearing in Kingston last week union officials testified that 86 workers had taken part in the walk-out, which it was claimed, was a "spontaneous demonstration," with the immediate cause being given as the discharge of one of the workers on the morning of September 18. The union organizer testified that after the walk-out there were approximately 17 employes remaining at work.

At the hearing it was testified that the employes who had walked out had subsequently voted to return to work, but that when the matter was put up to President Rathburn of the Kellburn Co., he said that he "was in no position to give an answer at this time."

Saugerties residents fear that unless the matter is settled and employes return to work in full force there is considerable likelihood that the business may be lost to Saugerties.

Committee Is Discharged

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—Over bitter southern opposition, the House voted 251 to 87 today to discharge its rules committee from further jurisdiction over legislation to outlaw poll taxes and ordered House consideration of the bill tomorrow. The action gave effect to a discharge petition circulated last year and signed by the 218th House member last month. The petition was circulated shortly after the bill was introduced early in 1941 by the late Representative Geyer (D-Calif.)

Rios' Decision Result of Welles' Talk in Boston

Chilean President Says His Country Does Not Like Information Circulated in U. S.

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 12 (AP)—President Juan Antonio Rios has postponed his intended visit to President Roosevelt in the second stroke of official Chilean displeasure to follow Thursday's speech in Boston by Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles.

Rios, in a message to President Roosevelt announced last night, said that "the latest official information circulated in the United States about my country's international policy has created an unpleasant atmosphere."

On Saturday, Chilean Ambassador Rodolfo Michels had presented Chile's protest against Welles' statements in a 45-minute call at the White House.

The Chilean president was scheduled to arrive October 21 in Brownsville, Tex., and to reach Washington the following day.

Without naming Argentina and Chile, the only two South American nations still maintaining diplomatic relations with the Axis, Welles said two South American republics "are still permitting their territory to be utilized by the officials and the subversive agents of the Axis as a base for hostile activities against their neighbors."

The Chilean president expressed his gratitude to President Roosevelt for his invitation and said the reasons for postponing the trip were "beyond my will."

Before Rios announced his decision, former President Arturo Alessandri made a personal attack on Welles, asserting that "perhaps he wished to warn the president of Chile to avoid scurrilous criticism" in the United States.

Argentina also has protested against Welles' statements and a communique from the Argentine foreign office said last night the "incident caused disgust in official circles and in the public opinion of Argentina."

However, in Buenos Aires, Nicolas Repetto, 1938 Socialist nominee for president, said "the extremely benevolent tolerance" shown to Nazis in Argentina gave "irrefutable basis to the accusations of Sumner Welles."

Order Is Refused

62nd Convention Of Ulster W.C.T.U.

Held on October 7 in Methodist Church Here

(Official Report)

Beautiful weather beamed on the 62nd annual convention of the Ulster County W. C. T. U. when they met in Clinton Avenue Methodist Church on October 7, 1942. Buses, not private cars, were the conveyances, therefore there was a smaller attendance and the evening session had to be omitted. However, the program was made snappy because reports must be condensed and business had to move with speed.

County President Emma G. Carpenter presided. Evangelistic Director Eliza Young conducted devotions. She brought verses from the fourth chapter of Hebrews to brace us and a message from a woman in Australia to bring us to the source of peace—God's presence, the presence which must be sought or it may not be found, but in this presence the spirit breathes in calm and peace and strength and endurance as we breathe in the air. Thus God bestows the invisible gifts needed to meet the trying times in which we dwell.

The Rev. William Peckham, pastor of the hostess church, brought greetings and in those greetings a message of encouragement. Mrs. L. Shultis, president of Kingston Union, welcomed the delegates heartily yet with brevity as fitted a program that must hurry. Three-minute reports came from county directors. Mrs. S. A. MacCormac of Highland speaking of the 23 white ribbon recruits, of the mother's meetings, of the literature to direct leaders of children, as she outlined work done in the department of child welfare. Mrs. Kate Covert told what had been done by the local unions along the line of citizenship, working for a clear press, urging the passage of bills to ban the sale of liquor to the boys in service. She informed the convention about women serving on juries and doing their duty at the polls. Mrs. Young brought gleanings from her evangelistic department, revealing the prayer circles formed, the Bible study classes organized, the family altars set up and urged that gospel temperance meetings be held. Mrs. Cornell, county director of Flower Mission and Welfare Work, had sent her report. Mrs. Swift read it. Besides cheer cards and flowers and dainties like jellies and fruits, furniture had been given to a family losing all by fire, money had gone to Ellis Island, much knitting and sewing had been done for refugees and the soldiers. The department of press could boast of 3,000 inches of publicity because notices of the coming of the state convention in October, 1941, and the accounts of the daily programs had been in all the Ulster county papers.

A weekly paper in Highland carries a W.C.T.U. column every week, using extracts from W.C.T.U. publications. Mrs. Bernard of Clintondale has the radio department. Mrs. Shultis' broadcasting from the Kingston station and her superintending of radio plays allows Ulster county much credit in this department. Mrs. Etta Camp of New Paltz had written a letter in the interest of work done for peace. Sermons had been preached and literature distributed. She had written to Donald Nelson requesting that there might be a service committing to God's care the boys as they "take off" on their errands of defense. Mrs. B. VanAken of the Ultser Park Union told what had been accomplished in the department of scientific temperance instruction. She spoke of the many blotters carrying temperance sentiment that had been given to pupils in schools. Mrs. Osborn had the mesage from the department of soliders and sailors. Members of different unions had taken courses in home nursing and nutrition and knitted articles for soldiers and sailors and sent the "Union Signal" to some Men's Service Centers, subscribed money for the blood bank and the Pine Camp amplifier. Some unions had purchased War Bonds. Mrs. J. R. Melius deplored that only three unions were "light line" unions this year, that is unions contributing money to maintain workers in the foreign fields. Many workers are in enemy lands and need the support of the home unions more than ever. She had listened to the broadcast from Birmingham, Ala., where the national W.C.T.U. was assembled and heard that in the "light line" demonstration even Germany was represented in the line of women bearing lighted candles. Mrs. Shultis read the report of Miss Saulpaugh, who has charge of Sunday school work. There are temperance study classes and temperance teaching is done in some of the Sunday schools. Mrs. M. Teas told of L. T. L. work its necessity and its rewards. Highland L. T. L., gave a play at the state convention last year. They have a study book this year. Scrap books made by the children were on display. Mrs. Teas listened for a voice to say "Our Union will start an L. T. L., a children's Loyal Temperance Legion." Mrs. Carpenter said that a visit to Highland's L. T. L., once a year is a bright spot in her memory. She too, pleaded for the organization of more children's groups. They can meet in the kitchen of a home.

Mrs. Whiston told of exhibts at the county fair. She told of the value of exhibts in a store window or some public place. She spoke also of the temperance literature, telling how and where it could be distributed. There are leaflets for children, leaflets for W. C. T. U. members, leaflets for those not members. Many unions have no worker in this department. Some person in each union should be making plans to increase the use of printed matter. It should be on display in the meetings. Many are glad to pay for leaflets and thus furnish more money for the purchase and distribution of temperance literature. One thousand blotters bearing temperance sentiments were given away at the county fair.

In the executive session, following the luncheon provided in the basement of the church, Mrs. Carpenter reappointed the directors for another year. Mrs. Hudson Covert was made director of peace, that post having been vacant for some years and Mrs. Melius was placed on the resolution committee because Mrs. Sarah Relyea had asked to be released. Mrs. Hare of Wallkill is to be Union Signal promoter. It was voted that Mrs. Shultis continue her radio work, as she again has permission to use radio time at the Kingston station. Favorable reports of her broadcasts come from many quarters.

The memorial service had been deferred until afternoon. It was conducted by Mrs. John B. Steketee. She spoke of the beautiful thing that memory could be made and read verses about the ointment poured upon Jesus' feet by the woman who brought the alabaster box, and the deed was declared to be her memorial. The loyalty, the service, the devotion of the women the unions have lost since the last convention is their memorial. Ten names were memtioned and a white blossom was deposited in a vase as each name was repeated. Mrs. Relyea and Mrs. DuBois are missed in Wallkill Union; Mrs. George DuBois in Milton Union, Ina Gerald in Clintondale; Mrs. Cookingham in Ellenville; Mrs. Rennie and Tillie Niece in the Ulster Park Union; Eva Van Duzer in Plattekill; and Miss Minnie Reisley and Mrs. Ella Carl in Kingston. Mrs. Steketee prayed in closing that we might dedicate our lives more wholeheartedly to the Master's service as we remembered the work of these women who have departed.

Mrs. Carpenter used Grace Noll Crowell's prayer poem, "Lord, Teach Us to Pray," for the worship season of the afternoon. Mrs. Fatum led in the singing of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," after Mrs. Carpenter had read how it came to Julia Ward Howe, and how at ninety she could say, "I march to the brave music still." Said Mrs. Carpenter, "Do we?" Under Mrs. Fatum's leading, we sang it as if we did. Mrs. Fatum gave us as her solo Homer Rodeheaver's "When Jesus Comes."

Mrs. Swift read the report of the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Black, who was absent Here were accounts of the community mass meetings held on Mother's Day and the 23 new members gained through the influence of the state convention, here were items about contributions for the blood bank, of money and labor to provide quilts, of money sent to Five Point Mission and contributions made to the children's home and the reorganization of the Clintondale Union.

Mrs. Swift then gave the treasurer's report. Ellenville had contributed over $100 for the blood bank. The report told how members of the unions had paid dues and kept up the budget and remembered the Willard Memorial Fund. After the state convention closed last autumn, there was a balance of $181.98 in the treasury and all convention expenses paid from the extra funds raised for that purpose. Receipts since amount to $480.30, making the total $662.28. The disbursements represent the sum of $465.19. In the treasury now there remains $197.09. Election of officers followed the report. Balloting was hastened in order that convention might close before bus time arrived. The result gave the following officers for next year:

Emma G. Carpenter, president.
Lillie Shultis, vice president.
Kate Covert, second vice president.
Mrs. Osborn, corresponding secretary.
Belle Brinckerhoff, recording secretary.
Ethel V. Swift, treasurer.

Mrs. Carpenter gave a resume of the year's work while tellers were preparing for the voting. She spoke of unions she had visited, the Ulster delegation of 35 attending the regional conference in Newburgh on February 26th, of the institute at Milton on April 17th, where Mrs. Harlow Parsons was the speaker, of the reorganization of the Clintondale Union on September 10. Earlier in the day we had heard how New Paltz, Kingston, Ulster Park, Milton and Highland had reached efficiency standards which classed them as fruitful unions. Now Mrs. Carpenter told us that her county was a fruitful county.

The Rev. Roscoe Strivings, who was to make the closing address, promised to cut his speech down to fit the bus time. And what he packed into the moments left! The Rev. Mr. Strivings is pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church of Kingston. His admiration for the W. C. T. U. dates back to his childhood and his father's interest in all the moral reforms and educational work of the state, and he knew what the W. C. T. U. is up against as are all who would stand for righteousness and sobriety. He defined temperance as moderation in the use of things that are good and abstinence from things that are bad. He read the Scripture telling of Zebedee's sons asking for seats on Christ's right hand and his left, that is they requested seats. That would make them spectators of the work of the kingdom, not participants. He bade the women not to seek seats, but to seek a task. There has come a moral setback. The war shows that "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. And the biggest war is not against Germans or Japs, but against lawlessness, indifference, unrighteousness. The W. C. T. U. is fighting on God's side.

Mrs. Young of the resolutions committee offered for adoption the resolution that the delegates would endeavor to put into practice the inspiration and ideas received at this convention when they were back home. The meeting closed with the music of "America," after Clintondale Union had invited the Ulster unions to that village for the spring institute.

Heater Causes Smoke

A range oil heater out of adjustment filled Goldman's Style Shop at 24 Broadway with heavy smoke and caused a still alarm at 10:42 o'clock Sunday morning. The only damage was that caused by smoke. The building is owned by Samuel Stone.

Farm Wage Rate Higher

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP)—The New York farm wage rate for July stood at 202 compared with the 1910-1914 index of 100, the state agriculture department reports. Prices received for farm products rose to 151 in September compared with an index of 100 for the same months, 1910-1914, but prices paid by farmers for all commodities were at 153 on the same scale. Last month's New York milk production of 551,000,000 pounds was approximately four per cent higher than the same month last year, the report states. Pastures were the best in 20 years and milk production reported September 1 and October 1 the highest in 18 years.

Oldest Residents Die

Elmira, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP)—Two of Chemung county's oldest residents — both centenarians — died within a few hours of each other yesterday. Jared Marvin, 103, the county's oldest resident, succumbed at his home in Chemung. A life-long Republican, he cast his first presidential vote for Lincoln in 1860 and his last for Wendell Willkie in 1940. John W. Seibel, 100, one of the county's two living Civil War veterans, died at Pine City. He enlisted at Syracuse in 1861 in Company 1, 101st New York Volunteers.

WATCH FOR THE CIRCULAR COMING TO YOUR DOOR

Dewey and Bennett Open Their Bids for Governorship

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP)—New York's two major party gubernatorial candidates, opening major upstate campaigns this week, are expected to reiterate pleas for citizens to qualify for voting to overcome the decided lag in registrations this year compared to 1940 and 1938.

Latest available registration figures for the November 3 election shows a decline throughout the state. New York city, closing its vote-qualifying books, reports 2,135,710 or 1,254,750 less than in 1940 and 298,266 under 1938. All but one upstate city, Binghamton, reported drops, some as high as 15 per cent.

Two days, Friday and Saturday, remain for registration in upstate communities with populations of 5,000 and larger. Voters may qualify Friday from 10 a. m., to 10 p. m., and Saturday from 7 a. m., to 10 p. m.

In smaller communities, where registration is non-personal, voters may qualify Saturday from 1 to 10 p. m.

Meanwhile, John J. Bennett, Jr., Democratic candidate for governor, opens his major election drive with stops today at Batavia, Albion, Lockport and Niagara Falls, the start of an entire week of upstate campaigning.

Thomas E. Dewey, his Republican rival, gets under way Wednesday at Rochester. Dewey, meeting with Watertown area Republicans Saturday at the conclusion of a two-day northern New York swing, expressed agreement with President Roosevelt's recent statement that the proposed St. Lawrence river power project should be deferred until after the war.

Declaring he "always strongly advocated development of the state's power resources for the benefit of all the people," Dewey added, "the President said that this is a military decision and that men and materials will not be available until after the war."

Bennett has urged immediate launching of the project.

The two major party nominees and others of the six gubernatorial candidates and their party leaders continued to place major emphasis on the need to register, attributing the decline in tabulations to the number of men and women in the armed forces, the shift of rural residents to city war industry work, gasoline and tire rationing and public apathy.

Governor Lehman also has appealed to citizens to register.

State Democratic Chairman, James A. Farley, saw in New York city registration developments assurance of "more than the usual Democratic plurality" in the state's largest city and continued confident Bennett would cut Dewey's 1938 upstate plurality to 250,000 votes.

State Comptroller Joseph V. O'Leary, candidate for reelection on both Democratic and American Labor party tickets, speaking in Buffalo yesterday, pointed to what he termed "an alarming increase in juvenile delinquency", caused by "the wholesale disruption of our normal ways of life," and added:

"If we have a wholesale exodus of mothers from homes into factories or civilian occupations, we will be weakening to a dangerous degree the inner strength in America."

Jeffers Defends Order on Rayon

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—Rubber Administrator William M. Jeffers told farm state senators today "we have gambled too damned long" already on the rubber situation in defending a W.P.B. order to substitute rayon for cotton in heavy tire manufacture.

Despite a bombardment of questions from members of the agricultural committee, most of whom were critical of the change, Jeffers declared that if rayon did a "better job" than cotton "then I am for rayon."

"So far as I am concerned, and make no mistake about it," he continued, "I am not influenced by anybody or anyone."

Senator McKellar (D.-Tenn.), contended that seven of the nine members of a W.P.B. advisory board which recommended the substitution were tire manufacturers and others interested in rayon.

Jeffers said he did not know whether that was correct, but "I'm assuming that in a war that you can trust Americans."

He asserted that expansion of rayon facilities would require a year to complete while tests of cotton were continuing.

"If cotton will do the better job," he added, "I am for cotton."

In the meantime, Jeffers said, the rayon expansion would proceed as "we've been gambling too damned long on this situation—that's what's the matter with this situation."

Roads Are Blocked In Michigan in Hunt for Mobsters

Paw Paw, Mich., Oct. 12 (AP)—State police and sheriff's officers clamped a road blockade on southwestern Michigan following a motorist's report the desperado, Roger Touhy, and four or five companions in a car threatened him with a tommy gun near here at 5 a. m. today.

The informant, Erving White, 35, Paw Paw creamery operator, said no shots were fired but that an occupant of the car silently aimed the weapon at him as he drove from a side-road and his headlights shone on the desperadoes' car, which evidently was having motor trouble.

White said he was "positive" one of the men was Touhy, and the convicted kidnaper, a fugitive with six other men from the Stateville, Ill., State Penitentiary, carried a holstered pistol at his hip. Officers at the Paw Paw post reported they had been unable thus far to pick up the trail, but that "this looks like a very hot tip."

White said he could not distinguish the serial numbers on the car's Illinois license plates, but that after it sped away he followed for about two miles and informed state police they had headed into U.S.-12 in the direction of Benton Harbor.

Reds Take Prize Areas in Drive

still were striving to take the valuable Grozny oil fields southeast of Mozdok, but the Russians reported a counterstroke with which they disrupted the German offensive and recaptured defense positions.

The Russians were reported advancing also in the zone southeast of Novorossisk, Black Sea port which the Germans now hold, storming a town house-by-house after the German garrison was surrounded. American-made jeeps were delivering anti-aircraft guns to the Caucasus front.

The Germans said that Russian forces encircled on the road to Tuapse, another Caucasus port on the Black Sea, southeast of Novorossisk, had been "annihilated."

The Hitler command also reported that a Russian group was "annihilated" in Stalingrad. That was the only direct mention of Stalingrad.

On the Volga, its communique said, a medium-sized vessel was sunk by shellfire and airmen "continued the destruction of an important railway line east of the river Volga."

Nazi Aviation Week

While Stalingrad seemed more than German ground forces could handle, the air battle of western Europe had demonstrated the weakness of German aviation against the mounting bombing power and fighter-bomber tactics of the British and Americans.

Last Friday's daylight raid on the German-held Lille area in which United States Flying Fortresses and Liberators accounted for 105 German fighters—48 destroyed, 38 probably destroyed and 19 damaged — demonstrated this point.

The fighter escort of the Lille raiders, working at times for entrapment of the German planes in bomber-fighter crossfire and at other times as decoys to draw the Germans away, was credited with an additional five German planes destroyed.

The newest developments in the air war include yesterday's daylight forays by the British against targets in northwestern Germany, principally Hannover, and in occupied France. It was the 43rd attack on Hannover, a railway and industrial center of about a half-million population.

A small number of German raiders made their first night attack on Britain since September 26 when they bombed scattered localities on the northeast coast last night, causing some casualties and damage.

The war in North Africa remained essentially a race between the Axis and the United Nations to build up the striking force and reservoir of supplies necessary for an offensive step. Designed to disrupt the Axis preparations, the Allied air offensive continued.

The next battle of North Africa promises to be a crucial test of the respective merits of American and German arms. Moreover, it had become apparent to correspondents in Egypt that Marshal Rommel will find more representatives of the United Nations arrayed against the Axis than ever before.

As for the present land action, the British reported only patrol activities and Axis reports agreed. In the air, however, heavy bombers attacked Bengasi, Axis Libyan port, on Saturday and Rommel's intermediate supply base, Tymbaki, Crete, on Saturday night.

Shipping Is Attacked

On Sunday United States heavy bombers, engaged with the British in a continuous war on Axis shipping, struck two freighters of about 8,000 tons, escorted by three destroyers off the coast of the occupied Greek Island of Crete. They also shot down three Axis planes, one third of the intercepting force —all within the space of a few minutes.

One of the two freighters was left, apparently sinking from a square hit on the stern.

Also in the eastern Mediterranean, the British were credited with a direct heavy bomb hit on one enemy destroyer—probably Italian—and two near misses on another. The British attack was delivered at night.

There was an increase in air activity over Malta, the enemy carrying out five heavily escorted bomber raids, but the defenders of the British Mediterranean isle destroyed at least 15 of the attackers and damaged many more as against the loss of one fighter.

This was the only Allied loss reported. The Italians nevertheless claimed that seven Allied planes were downed over Egypt yesterday and that 15 more were destroyed over Malta as against the loss of three Axis planes.

Churchill's Edinburgh speech today was a broad review of the war and included the statement that "the Australians, with their American Allies, have made a good advance in New Guinea."

He referred to the pursuit of Japanese forces which only a few days ago were less than 40 miles from Port Moresby, Allied base on New Guinea's southern short facing Australia.

The foe now has been driven back across New Guinea's mountain divide, about 70 miles from Port Moresby. Japanese and installations between their north shore base, Buna, and Kokoda are being repeatedly bombed and machine-gunned from the air.

Meanwhile Allied bombers, having laid waste to Rabaul, New Britain, a Japanese base on the island front facing Australia, in two successive night assaults, scored two direct hits on a 10,000-ton Japanese seaplane tender southeast of New Britain on Sunday. The vessel when last observed was motionless and apparently severely crippled.

Twelve planes were visible on the tender's deck when the attack was delivered so it was likely that the raiders put a crimp in Japanese efforts to bolster the air support for its invasion forces in New Guinea, the Solomons or elsewhere.

America's Forces Will Go Into Four Theatres of War

Twin Barriers of Time and Distance Shoved Aside to Get Job Done at Once

(Don Whitehead and Thoburn Wiant, formerly members of the Associated Press staff in New York, have joined the AP staff of war correspondents in the Middle East. In their first dispatch they tell of the United States' growing power branching from that war theatre.)

By DON WHITEHEAD AND THOBURN WIANT

Cairo, Oct. 12 (AP)—America's armed forces are shoving aside the twin barriers of time and distance to pour a rising tide of men and materials into four vital fronts of the second World War—the Middle East, Russia, India and China.

America is on the move in Africa.

That's what we saw on a 10,000-mile journey by air from the United States to this city in the Valley of the Nile about 150 miles from the Egyptian desert battle-front.

Tough, tanned Americans fresh from battle training and technical schooling back home are ripping apart jungles and establishing new bases in the blazing heat of the desert in preparation for the day when United Nations forces will move to drive Rommell's armies from North Africa.

In Desert Heat

The movement of men, munitions, tanks and planes by land, sea and air has not yet reached flood tide.

The desert front is the immediate scene of action, nevertheless United Nations forces are keeping a wary eye cocked on relations between Berlin and Vichy. There is more than academic interest in Vichy's attitude.

Speed has been the keynote of the American move into Africa.

There are many little Americas in Africa—places which have conveniences such as electric lights, running water, showers, ice and cold beer. These things might be classed by some as unnecessary luxuries but they are permanent fixtures which demonstrate that the Americans have arrived.

At one stop we looked with amazement upon what might have been an encampment somewhere in the United States. Yet we were told its site was wild and totally undeveloped only a few months ago.

There were rows of modern barracks. Each had electric lights, running water, showers and good beds. They reminded us of college dormitories.

Paved Roads

Winding through jungles were miles of paved roads. Desks, chairs, tables and even waste paper baskets were made of solid mahogany — so plentiful that it was used also in floors, walls and rafters.

The men smoked American cigarettes. There was plenty of American food. The army does everything to feed the men well. It is a bit surprising to sit at a mess in a remote camp and be served a good steak, baked beans, green salad, coffee and cake.

We were impressed by the morale of men everywhere we went. We heard occasional griping but the gripes were mostly those you would hear anywhere along the streets back home. What they want most is action.

We found health conditions excellent. Every safeguard has been taken on a past, present and future basis. Before troops moved into any camp medical officers surveyed the area for miles around and took every known precaution against malaria and other prevalent diseases.

Long before a spade was turned plans for encampments were blueprinted in the United States. But engineers came up against problems not solved by blueprints. That is where ingenuity played a big part. When necessary they improvised. Often they used native methods such as constructing light, airy buildings of native materials which required no priorities.

Not a nail was used in some of these structures. Sidewalls, supports and roof poles were lashed with strong fibers obtained from the jungle. Roofs were thatched.

But while they have Americanized their bases as much as possible with movies for entertainment, most of the lads we saw still looked upon Africa as a strange and awesome continent. They were hungry for news from home.

These Americans are in Africa to do a job—but they want to get it finished.

As one soldier put it "I want to stick my feet under Mom's table as soon as possible and have a mess of fried chicken, hot biscuits, country ham, four eggs sunny side up and some of her good freckle-face gravy. So let's get going."

Three Are Injured In Rail Mishap

Pennsylvania Main Line Is Blocked for Hours by Derailment

Monmouth Junction, N. J., Oct. 12 (AP)—Four tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad main line were blocked for three hours last night when the three rear cars of a Washington bound passenger train left the rails in a mishap that brought injuries to three persons.

The injured, all treated at Princeton Hospital, five miles from here, were identified by railroad officials as:

Louis Nadler, 52, of Philadelphia, shock and possible fracture of the spine.

Jacob Frageman, 59, of Philadelphia, cut on left knee.

Thirty-seven trains were delayed by the derailment and thousands of persons were left standing in Pennsylvania stations at New York, Newark and Philadelphia waiting for their trains to get through.

As 25 trains accumulated in the vicinity of New Brunswick, passengers left the cars and walked beside the tracks to ease the strain of waiting for service to resume.

In New York, more than 100 detectives and police were sent to Pennsylvania Station to answer questions of stranded travelers about the delay. Included in the throng estimated at 5,000 persons jammed in the station were many soldiers and sailors bound on furloughs or back to their stations.

Similar situations existed in Newark and at the Broad street, 30th street and North Philadelphia stations in Philadelphia.

The train, an extra section of No. 177, had left New York for the Capital at 5:30 p. m. (Eastern War Time.) The accident occurred at 6:06 p. m., 300 feet west of the midway signal tower.

After 45 minutes, the three derailed cars were disconnected and the train continued to Washington. The tracks remained blocked however for another two and a quarter hours.

New Levy Plans May Be Drafted By U. S. Treasury

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—The treasury may recommend increases in social security payroll levies, linked with a stiff spending tax, in a new financing program to be submitted to Congress after action is completed on the pending revenue bill.

The new tax measure, called "a very notable contribution to the tax system" by Chairman George (D-Ga) of the Senate Finance Committee, went to the House today where a conference committee was expected to be appointed to meet tomorrow with seven senators to begin the work of bringing into line the conflicting versions passed by the two chambers.

George expressed hope this committee might finish its work within a week and Congress already had notice from Secretary of The Treasury Morgenthau that he would be back on Capitol Hill with a request for an additional $6,000,000,000 in taxes as soon as the present measure was signed by the President.

While Morgenthau has not said what form he expected these levies to take, Senator Byrd (D-Va) said he looked for revival of a spending tax proposal, once rejected by a 12 to 0 vote of the finance committee.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) expressed a belief that the treasury might attempt to combine such a tax with a proposed increase in social security levies in a new war financing program.

This prospect brought a declaration from Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) that the treasury would find rough going if it made any attempt to finance war expenditures by increasing social security taxes above their present level of 1 per cent each on employers and employes.

Vandenberg led a successful fight for Senate adoption last week of an amendment freezing these levies at the present rate for 1943, despite an appeal by President Roosevelt that they be permitted to increase to a total of 4 per cent beginning Jan. 1, as Congress originally had contemplated.

Several Arrests Come as Result Of Labor Trouble

Saugerties had several arrests during the past week as a result of the labor trouble at the plant of Kellburn Manufacturing Co., where a majority of the employes staged a walk-out September 18, it was learned today. The plant manufactures tents and other canvas articles for the army, and, it is said, has contracts sufficient to keep it busy until 1944.

Captain Richter, Saugerties chief of police, said this morning that there had been six or seven arrests of former workers on charges of assault, third degree. It was stated that the arrests followed interference by pickets with those who are at present working in the plant, the charges including kicking, striking and fighting tactics generally. None of the cases are said to be too bad, so far as actual damage done is concerned.

The persons arrested are to be arraigned before Police Justice Ernest E. Schirmer, the hearings being set down for varying dates during the next week or two.

Previous to the walk-out on September 18 the plant employed considerably over 100 workers, whereas it is reported that at present only about 30 are working in the plant.

At an N. L. R. B. hearing in Kingston last week union officials testified that 86 workers had taken part in the walk-out, which it was claimed, was a "spontaneous demonstration," with the immediate cause being given as the discharge of one of the workers on the morning of September 18. The union organizer testified that after the walk-out there were approximately 17 employes remaining at work.

At the hearing it was testified that the employes who had walked out had subsequently voted to return to work, but that when the matter was put up to President Rathburn of the Kellburn Co., he said that he "was in no position to give an answer at this time."

Saugerties residents fear that unless the matter is settled and employes return to work in full force there is considerable likelihood that the business may be lost to Saugerties.

Committee Is Discharged

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—Over bitter southern opposition, the House voted 251 to 87 today to discharge its rules committee from further jurisdiction over legislation to outlaw poll taxes and ordered House consideration of the bill tomorrow. The action gave effect to a discharge petition circulated last year and signed by the 218th House member last month. The petition was circulated shortly after the bill was introduced early in 1941 by the late Representative Geyer (D-Calif.)

Rios' Decision Result of Welles' Talk in Boston

Chilean President Says His Country Does Not Like Information Circulated in U. S.

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 12 (AP)—President Juan Antonio Rios has postponed his intended visit to President Roosevelt in the second stroke of official Chilean displeasure to follow Thursday's speech in Boston by Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles.

Rios, in a message to President Roosevelt announced last night, said that "the latest official information circulated in the United States about my country's international policy has created an unpleasant atmosphere."

On Saturday, Chilean Ambassador Rodolfo Michels had presented Chile's protest against Welles' statements in a 45-minute call at the White House.

The Chilean president was scheduled to arrive October 21 in Brownsville, Tex., and to reach Washington the following day.

Without naming Argentina and Chile, the only two South American nations still maintaining diplomatic relations with the Axis, Welles said two South American republics "are still permitting their territory to be utilized by the officials and the subversive agents of the Axis as a base for hostile activities against their neighbors."

The Chilean president expressed his gratitude to President Roosevelt for his invitation and said the reasons for postponing the trip were "beyond my will."

Before Rios announced his decision, former President Arturo Alessandri made a personal attack on Welles, asserting that "perhaps he wished to warn the president of Chile to avoid scurrilous criticism" in the United States.

Argentina also has protested against Welles' statements and a communique from the Argentine foreign office said last night the "incident caused disgust in official circles and in the public opinion of Argentina."

However, in Buenos Aires, Nicolas Repetto, 1938 Socialist nominee for president, said "the extremely benevolent tolerance" shown to Nazis in Argentina gave "irrefutable basis to the accusations of Sumner Welles."

SNAPSHOTS

Last night we spent an hour or so
Reviewing scenes of long ago
And briefly lived the parts again
That fate conceived with Cupid's pen.

The play began with only two—
The moonlit lake—and one canoe
'Twas there we dreamed, that lazy June
And shyly planned our honeymoon.

The scene has changed—a year has gone
And next we view a crowded lawn
Where everyone's expression tells
The tale of Cupid's wedding bells.

A dozen snaps await us here
To follow through a happy year
And now another page we scan
That introduces Mary Ann.

The final act includes [illegible]
And there the snapshot stories [illegible]
The hour is done, and Cupid's play

INSTITUTIONAL ADS

Some of the larger merchandising concerns have been so badly affected by the war priorities that they hardly, at first, dared advertise anything, lest when the customer arrived the article be lacking and the shelves and warehouse be empty. The next stage in their thinking made them realize that no matter how small immediate sales might be, they dared not let the public forget their names. What to do?

Many of them are now devoting some of their usual advertising space to ads for war bonds, or to getting out scrap or other patriotic purposes. That is a very valuable thing to do, helping both to win the war and to keep the name in sight.

Many, also, are coming to what is called institutional advertising." That is to say, the space is given over to explanation of the company's products. The public learns how the product is made, what it is used for, the history of its invention, and of improvements in its manufacture. The specific object cannot, perhaps, be sold at this time, but the general nature of the business is made plain to the consumer. He likes to know about such things, but usually when he is about to buy some concrete object neither he nor the salesman has time to go into details of this kind. Perhaps the salesman doesn't know them, either.

So the educational advertising is useful to the seller, pleasant and informative to the future buyer. It is becoming justly popular.

WENDELL'S ARMAGEDDON

Wendell Willkie, a very likeable and useful citizen, seems to be "feeling his oats" more and more as he breezes into the world's free capitals, takes soundings and gives his verdict on war problems. For a free lance this may be all right—as far as he is concerned personally, and to the extent that the statesmen and nations he speaks to recognize the personal nature of his statements. It is hard, of course, for statesmen in foreign capitals to take him for anything else than a spokesman of the President. Thus complications develop.

Most the American public has gone along with him fairly well. He seems to have done a pretty good job of portraying American public opinion.

But when in Chungking he demanded "an all-out armed offensive everywhere by all the United Nations," Mr. Willkie was covering a lot of territory. To most Americans, eager as they are to clean up the world, the situation doesn't yet seem to be quite ripe for an American-sponsored Armageddon.

RECREATION

Times certainly change, and we change with them, as the old song says. Here is one of the most notable changes observed lately. Some Florida resorts are sending out publicity matter now, for the winter season, without any bathing girl pictures. This is a revolutionary procedure, but suited to the mood of the time.

And what does the reading matter say? Its appeal for patronage is in good taste. It says: "War doesn't put out the sunshine. It doesn't roll up the beaches. It doesn't black out the moon. It doesn't take in the stars. It doesn't chill our temperature. It doesn't destroy our natural beauty. It doesn't get us down. We are helping to win the war."

There are many ways to help, and doubtless they also serve, in these grim times, who provide rest and sunshine and white beaches instead of guns and shells. The sick need them, and there are times when the well need refreshment. And this blessed land, which has everything, can serve all its people in their needful ways.

WAR VIRTUE IN PEACE

Lord Elton, a thoughtful British nobleman, said truly the other day: "We must learn to carry with us into peace the lessons of war time." He insists that the essential virtues which are necessary to a war effort are also necessary to a peace effort.

Along with freedom, tolerance and cultivation of the arts and sciences, he says, "we have somehow to preserve the austerities and loyalties and discipline and courage and unselfishness of war—remembering always that civilization is not safety and comfort, but courage and unselfishness."

Tire-saving may yet bring back those signs which older folk remember in the first days of the automobile: "Speed Limit Eight Miles Per Hour."

If you must hoard, confine it to knowledge and merits for good deeds.

EATING RIGHT FOODS?

In these days of stress and strain when everybody must be at their best mentally and physically, health departments everywhere are trying to guide their communities as to proper food and eating habits.

While it may be true that too much has been said about the value of vitamins and minerals in the diet, nevertheless these two food elements have led many to give more attention to their food needs. Because there is no lack of the necessary foods, most individuals pick or choose the foods they like; it does not occur to them that they could possibly be suffering from a lack of the right kind of food to give them strength and energy. For this reason the governments of various countries and many health writers are issuing books and booklets on nutrition for the many individuals who cannot understand why they have not more energy or why they get tired so soon.

In his book "The National Nutrition", Dr. Morris Fishbein, Editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, points out that teachers and parents should be watchful of children as many of the signs of poor nutrition can be easily overlooked.

Signs that suggest poor nutrition are (a) lack of appetite, (b) failure to eat a good breakfast, (c) failure to gain steadily in weight, (d) dislike of play, (e) chronic diarrhoea, (f) inability to sit still, (g) poor sleeping habits, (h) backwardness at school, (i) head colds, (j) bad posture, (k) sores at corners of mouth.

These same signs and symptoms are often seen in teen age boys and girls also and require the same careful attention.

The "food guide" issued by the United States Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services, published in poster form "can be applied simply and practically in every home."

"Milk and milk products—at least a pint for everyone—more for children—or cheese, or dried or evaporated milk."

"Oranges, tomatoes, grapefruit—or raw cabbage or salad greens—at least one of these."

"Green or yellow vegetables—one big helping, other vegetables and fruits in season."

"Bread and Cereal"—whole grain or enriched white bread and flour."

"Meat, poultry or fish — dried beans, peas or nuts occasionally.

"Eggs — at least 3 or 4 a week, cooked any way you choose or in "made" dishes."

"Butter and other spreads — vitamin-rich fats, peanut butter, and similar spreads."

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

One of the most active clergymen in Kingston in the years at the turn of the century was the Rev. Dr. R. C. Dodds of the First Presbyterian Church. He was also known as the author of several books. On February 18, 1907, his latest book, "Elisha, the Man of God" was published. Dr. Dodds served the uptown church for a number of years.

Samuel Brown and George Dressel on February 21, 1907, formed the plumbing firm of Brown & Dressel, which is still known as one of the leading firms in Kingston. Mr. Brown for many years was actively interested in civic affairs and served on the Board of Health for several years.

Ten years later on February 23, 1917, the education board met and appointed Dr. Henry Van Hoevenberg to serve as medical examiner in the public schools, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Mary Gage Day who was removing to Ithaca.

In February, 1927, Ray L. Whitbeck, who had been with Teller & Tappen, coal dealers, for many years, accepted a position with the Waterbury & Blankfield Coal Co., with office and yard on Foxhall avenue, at Gage street. Mr. Whitbeck is now with the Kingston Coal Co., and the firm of Waterbury & Blankfield.

Mr. Waterbury for years was with the J. T. Johnson hardware concern and had charge of the branch office on central Broadway before he embarked in the retail coal business. He was also active in city affairs and served as member and president of the charity board for some years.

Mr. Whitbeck is one of the old timers of the local "Y" and in his youth was a member of the famous Columbia basketball team of the "Y" which was one of the leading teams in the Hudson river valley.

It was on March 1, 1927, that the J. J. Newberry Co., took title to the site of the old St. John's Church on Wall street and planned to erect the present modern store on the site. The church was taken down and removed from Wall street to its present location on Albany avenue.

In February, 1927, the Rev. William P. Kemper of Meadville, Pa., accepted a call to become rector of St. John's Church and served the church for a number of years.

The formal opening of the new Kingston exchange of the Hudson River Telephone Co., on central Broadway was held on March 7, 1907. This is the building that now houses the New York Telephone Co.

It was on March 7, 1917, that the Rev. Dr. Putnam Cady was installed pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. Dr. Cady served the uptown church for a number of years and was in great demand as a lecturer while in Kingston.

Roosevelt's Government Will Get Opportunity Through Circumstances to Prove Its Sincerity With New Power

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 12 — The Roosevelt administration is about to be put to the acid test of sincerity and fair dealing in the use of powers delegated by Congress.

For months, opponents of the administration—and many of them became isolationists because of it—have insisted that the true purpose of President Roosevelt was to use the powers of war and national emergency to bring about a system of national socialism.

Supporters of the administration, including those who have been a bit skeptical but who have insisted that the President isn't really radical at heart, have been indignant at any such suggestion. They have declared that the purpose of the President is to win the war and that it was unfair, if not almost treasonable, to intimate that he would ever take advantage of the war powers conferred upon him so as to accomplish reforms which were not within the intent of Congress.

The opportunity to settle this debate has arrived. Congress has bestowed on the chief executive in broad terms the power to stabilize prices, wages and salaries affecting the cost of living in order to aid in the effective prosecution of the war."

Will increases in the salaries or wages affect the cost of living? Will the increases in wages or salaries or their decrease "aid in the effective prosecution of the war?" This is the only criterion of judgment and the President must be able to justify—not to any Supreme Court for it may never get the case—but to his own conscience and all fair-minded persons whether the orders he or Director Byrnes may issue actually do "aid in the prosecution of the war."

The law says nothing about a $25,000 limit but the first executive order arbitrarily selects the $25,000 a year salary and, in effect, states that it doesn't "aid in the prosecution of the war" for anybody to retain more than that amount from his salary after payment of taxes. The same executive order says that fixed obligations may be deducted and that there must not be "any undue hardship" but, as Great, Britain has already found in the matter of salary restriction, the incentives to hard work are impaired when managers are forced into financial embarrassment by restrictive measures.

The success of America's industrial production program depends on the enthusiasm of management as well as labor. But the quantity of management available is limited. Today as normal facilities have been expanded in some instances ten fold and even a hundred fold, the duties of the managers have increased tremendously. They work no mere 40-hour week but closer to a 70-hour week. They bear a strain unprecedented in their lives. And now the government comes along and decides that their personal finances must be revised downward.

No such sacrifice is demanded of any class except the managerial class. Labor of course is to be permitted a 15 per cent increase over the cost of living level on January 1, 1941 and there is provision to correct 'substandard" wage levels and "inequalities" which, of course, means that there will be more wage increases and certainly no wage decreases.

The War Labor Board has not heretofore reduced any group's wages and since its precedents will be followed the chances are that the present high wage levels will be frozen.

The new executive order doesn't merely provide against increasing salaries. It provides for the actual reduction of salaries above $25,000 a year after payment of taxes. The number of individuals affected is probably less than 40,000 and by no stretch of a fair-minded man's imagination could it be said that the reasonable increases in salary that might be made for the managers of America's industrial enterprises could even infinitesimally affect the cost of living or interfere with the effective prosecution of the war. On the contrary it could be more easily proved that reasonable increases would aid in the prosecution of the war.

Then why are salaries to be reduced among America's most capable managers? The real reason is that the President told labor leaders he was going to do this in order to get them to accept wage freezing it was a political and not an economic circumstance. Thus the salaries of the executives wouldn't affect the cost of living but runaway wage scales among the workers would bring about such a result. So American management even though the victims of the deal as well swallow the restriction with the comforting fact that they are being called upon not for "equality or sacrifice to help the administration out of the hole into which it has been plunged by a long series of steps granting inflation, the administration is struggling to curb it by punishing the minority who had nothing to do with it.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — About 16 months ago, President Roosevelt elevated Senator James Francis Byrnes to the United States Supreme Court.

"Why?" asked both the off-side and on-side politicians in almost the same breath.

"Jimmy" Byrnes, then majority leader of the Senate, was the "little fox" of administration politics. The President, they said, was pulling out his strongest congressional prop. He was, they continued, relegating his most popular legislative leader to that political graveyard — the Supreme Court.

The answer to the criticism should now be pretty clear. The President was only saving "Jimmy" Byrnes for that day when he needed him more than he ever had before. For almost a year and a half, with one crisis following another, Associate Justice James F. Byrnes has been sitting serenely on the sidelines, hiding his light under that marble basket which is the highest court in the land; and nursing, through many storms, one of the best political reputations the New Deal has turned out.

Then came the necessity for appointing a stabilization czar to administer the sweeping anti-inflation legislation.

This meant calling up a man who could stand back of frozen wages and farm price ceilings. It meant appointing an executive who could straighten out the political muddle that has caused so much criticism of the otherwise competent price administrator, Leon Henderson. It meant setting up a four-star general of cost-of-living stabilization who could demand respect from the public and reverence from the politicians.

It's a rare—almost unheard of—thing for a U. S. Supreme Court justice to step down from the security of that high bench to take over a spot on the firing line, even when that spot is economic chief of staff to the President himself. Nevertheless, the move is characteristic of "Jimmy" Byrnes.

Small, wiry, sharp-featured, nervous, energetic Byrnes is not the kind to walk out his life in the sombre robes of a supreme court justice. The story goes that he wanted that job on the court more than he wanted anything else and the President, recognizing both ability and a debt for work well done, gave it to him. Perhaps the President knew then that "Jimmy" wouldn't like it so well that he couldn't be called out to battle again when the need should come.

Fortress Pilot Is Symbolic of Men Who Fly Big Craft

BY WES GALLAGHER

With the U. S. flying fortress command in England, Oct. 12 (Wide World)—"Greater love hath no pilot than to offer his life for his plane"—

That's the modernized American version of an old teaching, as demonstrated by Second Lieutenant Francis Schwarzenbach, 23-year-old flying fortress pilot from Nutley, N. J.

Schwarzenbeck and his co-pilot Kenneth Jones, Detroit, Mich., probably will not be cited or decorated because their feats did not take place on a combat mission—but on a practice mission 32,000 feet above this island.

It happened when the number four motor of Schwarzenbeck's plane, Ala Jane,—named for his wife who lives in Coral Gables, Fla.—started to race. A big piece of the propellor broke off and imbedded itself in the cowling of the number three motor.

With one motor useless, Schwarzenbeck rang the alarm bell warning his crew to be prepared to jump and started a slow spiral downward.

At 29,000 feet the number three motor suddenly exploded, wrecking the landing gear and spreading a sheet of flaming oil from one end to the plane to the other.

While Jones raced through the long fortress gangway seeing that everybody got their chutes and virtually pushing them out the escape hatch, Schwarzenbeck fought the controls of the bucking and burning plane trying to keep it steady and the flames under control.

Jones staggered back to the cockpit with Schwarzenbeck's parachute.

"Here, let's jump," Jones exclaimed.

"Be damned if I will, this plane is named after my wife and it's part of me. I'm going to take her down," Schwarzenbeck replied.

At this moment the number two motor caught fire and desperately Schwarzenbeck cut off the remaining motor and started the flaming ship down in a slow glide, sideslipping in an attempt to put out the fire.

He ordered Jones to jump and the co-pilot stumbled back to the escape hatch and leaped, pulling his ripcord a split second before losing consciousness.

When Jones recovered he was on the ground with a farmer standing over him with a pitchfork poised trying to decide whether he was a German parachutist.

Meanwhile, Schwarzenbeck skillfully glided the burning Alma Jane down through the cloud layer at about 9,000 feet, not knowing whether the mist covered a mountain into which he might crash or open country.

He spotted a small rifle target range which was flat enough for a crash landing and, without power and using his many tonned fortress as an immense glider, Schwarzenbeck brought his plane down without a scratch to himself but tearing off the tail of his ship.

As he stumbled from the battered Alma Jane and saw the extent of the damage, tears rolled down his cheeks. He mumbled to farmers who rushed to the wreckage.

Rondout Church Dedicates Flag For Service Men

A service flag with 21 stars was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies at the Sunday morning service in the Rondout Presbyterian Church in honor of the men of the church who are already in the service of the armed forces.

The flag was presented to the church by George Wolff who has three brothers in the service, on behalf of the members of the Sunday school class of Fred L. Van Deusen. Many on the church's service roll have been members of that class.

The flag was received by the Rev. D. Linton Doherty, pastor of the church, on behalf of the congregation, and was hung near the service flag of 1918, which contains 28 stars.

"Sacrifice and Service" was the theme of the Rev. Mr. Doherty's sermon.

Also placed in a conspicious place in the church is a panel with the photographs of the young men who had served in the first World War, and which had been presented to the church during the years of the first World War by the late Rev. Dr. Charles G. Ellis, who was then pastor of the church.

It is planned to place a similar panel containing the pictures of those serving the second World War in the church, and the Rev. Mr. Doherty already has received some pictures of the boys now in the service. These will be framed beside the pictures of the first World War veterans.

The church's service roll already bears the names of William K. Darling, Charles G. Ellis, Fred Ennist, David H. Finley, Kenneth Glass, LeRoy Hammond, Donald McCausland, David L. Palmer, Francis V. Phillips, Donald Ringwald, Herbert L. Simmons, George W. Simpkins, Robert Simpkins, Terry Staples, Calvin Swart, Donald Van Deusen, Herbert C. Wolff, Raymond Wolff, John W. Wannop and Henry W. Wannop.

Local Trio Shows Work Of Art in Store Window

A symbolic piece of art work, of complicated design and clever execution, depicting the "Tomb of the Beasts," is being displayed in the Flanagan show window on Wall street and is attracting much attention.

It is the work of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis S. Brown, who did the sculpture and art work, and Angelo Bruno, who did the construction. Materials used are stone dust, beeswax, glass and paint. It is built on a scale of ⅝ inch to the foot, and the work involved covered a period of some six months.

The central tower of the tomb has stained glass windows depicting the four riders of the apocalypse—one with a bow, taking peace from the world; one with a sword, bringing war; another with scales for a balancing of issues, and a fourth in the form of death, with power to destroy.

Above the windows are six bronze panels, three of them showing the four beasts of the apocalypse and three showing the signs of the zodiac. Stone sculptures above the door show the less pleasant beasts.

Three crypts, highly ornamented, standing out from the base of the tower, contain the bodies of Hitler, Mussolini and Prime Minister Tojo. Above the latter are shown cobras, this being the "year of the snake" in Japan.

Around the edge of the circular base on which the edifice rests is symbolized the destruction which has followed the march of the dictators' armies in Europe, with little figure groups typifying invasion, starvation and all the horrors and suffering which their acts have entailed.

Zion Cult Leader Dies in Illinois

Wilbur Glenn Voliva Fails to Reach 106 Years

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP)—Death cut short by 34 years the 106-year-life span Wilbur Glenn Voliva, colorful religious cult leader of Zion, Ill., once predicted he would complete and thereby survive his oft-prognosticated world end.

The self-styled prophet, who persistently preached from his Shiloh Temple that the world was flat, died after a short illness in Billings Hospital last night at the age of 72. He said he would live until 1976.

He made that prediction in 1931, but he never explained how he would survive the end of the world, which most recently he set for 1943.

Although he confined his activity principally to the church colony village of Zion, a community of 6,000 north of Chicago, his fame spread over the nation through his many predictions of the end of the world, made to the exact day for various years.

Of his prediction that the world would end in 1943, Voliva said in 1934 that the period from 1914 to 1942-43, designed in the Bible as the "time of the end," would reach a world climax in 1935-36 in world revolution and chaos. Out of that, he said, would "come the superman, the world-dictator, whose administration of world affairs will continue for approximately seven years, ending with the battle of Armageddon, which battle will never be fought, as it will be halted by the second stage of Christ's coming; namely, his coming in glory to destroy all gentile nations and to inaugurate his millenial rule."

A year later, however, he predicted the battle of Armageddon actually would take place—a battle "so bloody that it will require seven months to bury the slain."

On the one side in the battle, he said, would be the revived Roman Empire, or Fascist alliance, including Italy, France, England and the United States, who would defend the Holy Land from the invasion of the other of the middle and northeastern European nations, grouped into the great northeastern confederacy, a modified type of Communism.

62nd Convention Of Ulster W.C.T.U.

(Official Report)

Beautiful weather beamed on the 62nd annual convention of the Ulster County W. C. T. U. when they met in Clinton Avenue Methodist Church on October 7, 1942. Buses, not private cars, were the conveyances, therefore there was a smaller attendance and the evening session had to be omitted. However, the program was made snappy because reports must be condensed and business had to move with speed.

County President Emma G. Carpenter presided. Evangelistic Director Eliza Young conducted devotions. She brought verses from the fourth chapter of Hebrews to brace us and a message from a woman in Australia to bring us to the source of peace—God's presence, the presence which must be sought or it may not be found, but in this presence the spirit breathes in calm and peace and strength and endurance as we breathe in the air. Thus God bestows the invisible gifts needed to meet the trying times in which we dwell.

The Rev. William Peckham, pastor of the hostess church, brought greetings and in those greetings a message of encouragement. Mrs. L. Shultis, president of Kingston Union, welcomed the delegates heartily yet with brevity as fitted a program that must hurry. Three-minute reports came from county directors. Mrs. S. A. MacCormac of Highland speaking of the 23 white ribbon recruits, of the mother's meetings, of the literature to direct leaders of children, as she outlined work done in the department of child welfare. Mrs. Kate Covert told what had been done by the local unions along the line of citizenship, working for a clear press, urging the passage of bills to ban the sale of liquor to the boys in service. She informed the convention about women serving on juries and doing their duty at the polls. Mrs. Young brought gleanings from her evangelistic department, revealing the prayer circles formed, the Bible study classes organized, the family altars set up and urged that gospel temperance meetings be held. Mrs. Cornell, county director of Flower Mission and Welfare Work, had sent her report. Mrs. Swift read it. Besides cheer cards and flowers and dainties like jellies and fruits, furniture had been given to a family losing all by fire, money had gone to Ellis Island, much knitting and sewing had been done for refugees and the soldiers. The department of press could boast of 3,000 inches of publicity because notices of the coming of the state convention in October, 1941, and the accounts of the daily programs had been in all the Ulster county papers.

A weekly paper in Highland carries a W.C.T.U. column every week, using extracts from W.C.T.U. publications. Mrs. Bernardi of Clintondale has the radio department. Mrs. Shultis' broadcasting from the Kingston station and her superintending of radio plays allows Ulster county much credit in this department. Mrs. Etta Camp of New Paltz had written a letter in the interest of work done for peace. Sermons had been preached and literature distributed. She had written to Donald Nelson requesting that there might be a service committing to God's care the boys as they "take off" on their errands of defense. Mrs. B. VanAken of the Ultser Park Union told what had been accomplished in the department of scientific temperance instruction. She spoke of the many blotters carrying temperance sentiment that had been given to pupils in schools. Mrs. Osborn had the mesage from the department of soliders and sailors. Members of different unions had taken courses in home nursing and nutrition and knitted articles for soldiers and sailors and sent the "Union Signal" to some Men's Service Centers, subscribed money for the blood bank and the Pine Camp amplifier. Some unions had purchased War Bonds. Mrs. J. R. Melius deplored that only three unions were "light line" unions this year, that is unions contributing money to maintain workers in the foreign fields. Many workers are in enemy lands and need the support of the home unions more than ever. She had listened to the broadcast from Birmingham, Ala., where the national W.C.T.U. was assembled and heard that in the "light line" demonstration even Germany was represented in the line of women bearing lighted candles. Mrs. Shultis read the report of Miss Saulpaugh, who has charge of Sunday school work. There are temperance study classes and temperance teaching is done in some of the Sunday schools. Mrs. M. Teas told of L. T. L. work its necessity and its rewards. Highland L. T. L., gave a play at the state convention last year. They have a study book this year. Scrap books made by the children were on display. Mrs. Teas listened for a voice to say "Our Union will start an L. T. L., a children's Legal Temperance Legion." Mrs. Carpenter said that a visit to Highland's L. T. L., once a year is a bright spot in her memory. She too, pleaded for the organization of more children's groups. They can meet in the kitchen of a home.

Mrs. Whiston told of exhibits at the county fair. She told of the value of exhibits in a store window or some public place. She spoke also of the temperance literature, telling how and where it could be distributed. There are leaflets for children, leaflets for W. C. T. U. members, leaflets for those not members. Many unions have no worker in this department. Some person in each union should be making plans to increase the use of printed matter. It should be on display in the meetings. Many are glad to pay for leaflets and thus furnish more money for the purchase and distribution of temperance literature. One thousand blotters bearing temperance sentiments were given away at the county fair.

In the executive session, following the luncheon provided in the basement of the church, Mrs. Carpenter reappointed the directors for another year. Mrs. Hudson Covert was made director of peace, that post having been vacant for some years and Mrs. Melius was placed on the resolution committee because Mrs. Sarah Relyea had asked to be released. Mrs. Hare of Wallkill is to be Union Signal promoter. It was voted that Mrs. Shultis continue her radio work, as she again has permission to use radio time at the Kingston station. Favorable reports of her broadcasts come from many quarters.

The memorial service had been deferred until afternoon. It was conducted by Mrs. John B. Steketee. She spoke of the beautiful thing that memory could be made and read verses about the ointment poured upon Jesus' feet by the woman who brought the alabaster box, and the deed was declared to be her memorial. The loyalty, the service, the devotion of the women the unions have lost since the last convention is their memorial. Ten names were mentioned and a white blossom was deposited in a vase as each name was repeated. Mrs. Relyea and Mrs. DuBois are missed in Wallkill Union; Mrs. George DuBois in Milton Union, Ina Gerald in Clintondale; Mrs. Cookingham in Ellenville; Mrs. Rennie and Tillie Niece in the Ulster Park Union; Eva Van Duzer in Plattekill; and Miss Minnie Reisley and Mrs. Ella Carl in Kingston. Mrs. Steketee prayed in closing that we might dedicate our lives more wholeheartedly to the Master's service as we remembered the work of these women who have departed.

Mrs. Carpenter used Grace Noll Crowell's prayer poem, "Lord, Teach Us to Pray," for the worship season of the afternoon. Mrs. Fatum led in the singing of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," after Mrs. Carpenter had read how it came to Julia Ward Howe, and how at ninety she could say, "I march to the brave music still." Said Mrs. Carpenter, "Do we?" Under Mrs. Fatum's leading, we sang it as if we did. Mrs. Fatum gave us as her solo Homer Rodeheaver's "When Jesus Comes."

Mrs. Swift read the report of the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Black, who was absent. Here were accounts of the community mass meetings held on Mother's Day and the 23 new members gained through the influence of the state convention, here were items about contributions for the blood bank, of money and labor to provide quilts, of money sent to Five Point Mission and contributions made to the children's home and the reorganization of the Clintondale Union.

Mrs. Swift then gave the treasurer's report. Ellenville had contributed over $100 for the blood bank. The report told how members of the unions had paid dues and kept up the budget and remembered the Willard Memorial Fund. After the state convention closed last autumn, there was a balance of $181.98 in the treasury and all convention expenses paid from the extra funds raised for that purpose. Receipts since amount to $480.30, making the total $662.28. The disbursements represent the sum of $465.19. In the treasury now there remains $197.09. Election of officers followed the report. Balloting was hastened in order that convention might close before bus time arrived. The result gave the following officers for next year:

Emma G. Carpenter, president.

Lillie Shultis, vice president.

Kate Covert, second vice president.

Mrs. Osborn, corresponding secretary.

Ethel V. Swift, treasurer.

Mrs. Carpenter gave a resume of the year's work while tellers were preparing for the voting. She spoke of unions she had visited, the Ulster delegation of 35 attending the regional conference in Newburgh on February 26th, of the institute at Milton on April 17th, where Mrs. Harlow Parsons was the speaker, of the reorganization of the Clintondale Union on September 10. Earlier in the day we had heard how New Paltz, Kingston, Ulster Park, Milton and Highland had reached efficiency standards which classed them as fruitful unions. Now Mrs. Carpenter told us that her county was a fruitful county.

The Rev. Roscoe Strivings, who was to make the closing address, promised to cut his speech down to fit the bus time. And what he packed into the moments left! The Rev. Mr. Strivings is pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church of Kingston. His admiration for the W. C. T. U. dates back to his childhood and his father's interest in all the moral reforms and educational work of the state, and he knew what the W. C. T. U. is up against as are all who would stand for righteousness and sobriety. He defined temperance as moderation in the use of things that are good and abstinence from things that are bad. He read the Scripture telling of Zebedee's sons asking for seats on Christ's right hand and his left, that is they requested seats. That would make them spectators of the work of the kingdom, not participants. He bade the women not to seek seats, but to seek a task. There has come a moral setback. The war shows that "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. And the biggest war is not against Germans or Japs, but against lawlessness, indifference, unrighteousness. The W. C. T. U. is fighting on God's side.

Mrs. Young of the resolutions committee offered for adoption the resolution that the delegates would endeavor to put into practice the inspiration and ideas received at this convention when they were back home. The meeting closed with the music of "America," after Clintondale Union had invited the Ulster unions to that village for the spring institute.

Round Trip!

Columbus Day is here again, and I suppose we should Dig up the old boy's history, and deeds—at least the good.
Because it seems that he's the one on whom to place the blame
For getting us to where we are; that's what the records claim.
I used to think 'twas wonderful that Chris picked out this spot,
So we could all move over here; but—may be—it was not.
The task of sending back our men and wealth, makes this occur
To me: We'd saved a lot of work —by staying where we were.
—Lyla Myers

Farmer Smith was suing Farmer Jones and was talking the case over with his lawyer:

Farmer Jones—Do you think it would be a good idea if I sent the judge one of my prize turkeys?

Lawyer — Great Scott, man! Don't do that. You'll lose the case sure if you try to influence the judge that way.

Next day Farmer Jones told his lawyer he had sent the turkey.

Lawyer (moaning)—Oh, oh, oh! Our case is as good as lost right now.

Farmer Jones—Not at all. I sent the turkey, but I put Smith's name on it.

"Many of our modern fiction writers will not achieve immortality." They miss it by a "t".

"There is far too much crime in our large cities." Just how much should there be?

"Man's origin can be traced to the fish. . . ." Perhaps this explains why it is so difficult for many of us to keep our head above the water.

Mr. Simpson was reading the newspaper:

Mr. Simpson—Here's a man got into a drunken brawl and was stabbed to death.

Mrs. Simpson (glancing up from her knitting)—In some low drinking den, I suppose?

Mr. Simpson—No; the paper says he got stabbed in the thoracic cavity.

Mrs. Simpson — Same thing; you'd think the officers of the law would close such a place up.

As we celebrate Columbus Day, let us give thanks that the discoverer of America left this continent where he found it.

Mother—I think she's a wonderful player for her age. Of course, she makes a mistake now and then, but you must remember that she plays entirely by ear.

Friend of the Family—Yes, the trouble is, that's the way I listen.

And How!

For sailing an uncharted sea until you reached our shore,
We thank you, Mr. Columbus, as we never have before.

City Chap—Guess there's a lot of big men born in this town?

Native—No, just babies.

Asked to describe graft, a man put it this way:

"Graft is a system under whose operation most of the people are constantly being embarrassed because they haven't got any money and the rest of the people are constantly having to explain how they got their money."

Draft Board Inquirer — Was there ever any insanity in your family?

Drafted Man—I am told my father was insane right up to his death.

Draft Board Inquirer—How was that?

Drafted Man—Well, right up until father died he thought he was boss of our house.

There are many graceful dancers, but none can match a leaf fluttering from an oak tree in October.

Father—When I was your age I worked twelve hours a day.

Junior—I admire your youthful energy, Dad, but I admire still more the mature wisdom which led you to stop it.

Something to think about: What if we lose this war?

SHOULD HOUSE GUEST BRING PRESENT FOR THE HOSTESS?

We are all used to changes in fashions and easily adapt ourselves to them. But changes in point of view are difficult to meet. For example, it has always been considered a courteous impulse for a person invited to stay in someone's house to bring a gift of candy or flowers—or, to an intimate friend, almost anything that one may think pleasing. Or instead of bringing a gift, it has been thought equally proper to send one after returning home. But I have had several letters from readers who seem to feel quite differently.

Occasional hostesses (and hosts) have written me that they resent such gifts as though their guests were trying to enforce some sort of payment. Frankly I don't know what it is they think. All the same their letters make me hesitate about answering a girl who writes me:

"I have been invited by the aunt of my best friend, who is in camp, to spend a week with her. She lives near the camp and I know that she invited me to please him. I have never met her, but she has written me a sweet letter. I would like to know whether I should take her a present or wait and send her one when I get home? And please what are my other obligations?"

In answering this I can say that your only obligation is to be a considerate and appreciative guest. I have already explained at length why it is perhaps best to bring no gift. Perhaps while you are there you may find something she especially likes and that you want very much to give her, and perhaps too you can sound out her "point of view."

Bride's Foster Mothers Are Seated Last

Dear Mrs. Post: The bride has no mother, but lives with and has been brought up these many years by two great-aunts. I am the bridegroom's mother and would like to have you tell us whether I should be escorted up the aisle last of the guests, or whether the two aunts should be last. And whether they or I should leave the church first?

Answer: The aunts enter last because they take the place of the bride's mother. Their appearance means that the bride has arrived at the church. It would be quite proper for you to leave the church first, excepting that their age rather rather suggests that they be given greater deference.

INSTITUTIONAL ADS

Some of the larger merchandising concerns have been so badly affected by the war priorities that they hardly, at first, dared advertise anything, lest when the customer arrived the article be lacking and the shelves and warehouse be empty. The next stage in their thinking made them realize that no matter how small immediate sales might be, they dared not let the public forget their names. What to do?

Many of them are now devoting some of their usual advertising space to ads for war bonds, or to getting out scrap or other patriotic purposes. That is a very valuable thing to do, helping both to win the war and to keep the name in sight.

Many, also, are coming to what is called institutional advertising." That is to say, the space is given over to explanation of the company's products. The public learns how the product is made, what it is used for, the history of its invention, and of improvements in its manufacture. The specific object cannot, perhaps, be sold at this time, but the general nature of the business is made plain to the consumer. He likes to know about such things, but usually when he is about to buy some concrete object neither he nor the salesman has time to go into details of this kind. Perhaps the salesman doesn't know them, either.

So the educational advertising is useful to the seller, pleasant and informative to the future buyer. It is becoming justly popular.

WENDELL'S ARMAGEDDON

Wendell Willkie, a very likeable and useful citizen, seems to be "feeling his oats" more and more as he breezes into the world's free capitals, takes soundings and gives his verdict on war problems. For a free lance this may be all right—as far as he is concerned personally, and to the extent that the statesmen and nations he speaks to recognize the personal nature of his statements. It is hard, of course, for statesmen in foreign capitals to take him for anything else than a spokesman of the President. Thus complications develop.

Most the American public has gone along with him fairly well. He seems to have done a pretty good job of portraying American public opinion.

But when in Chungking he demanded "an all-out armed offensive everywhere by all the United Nations," Mr. Willkie was covering a lot of territory. To most Americans, eager as they are to clean up the world, the situation doesn't yet seem to be quite ripe for an American-sponsored Armageddon.

RECREATION

Times certainly change, and we change with them, as the old song says. Here is one of the most notable changes observed lately. Some Florida resorts are sending out publicity matter now, for the winter season, without any bathing girl pictures. This is a revolutionary procedure, but suited to the mood of the time.

And what does the reading matter say? Its appeal for patronage is in good taste. It says: "War doesn't put out the sunshine. It doesn't roll up the beaches. It doesn't black out the moon. It doesn't take in the stars. It doesn't chill our temperature. It doesn't destroy our natural beauty. It doesn't get us down. We are helping to win the war."

There are many ways to help, and doubtless they also serve, in these grim times, who provide rest and sunshine and white beaches instead of guns and shells. The sick need them, and there are times when the well need refreshment. And this blessed land, which has everything, can serve all its people in their needful ways.

WAR VIRTUE IN PEACE

Lord Elton, a thoughtful British nobleman, said truly the other day: "We must learn to carry with us into peace the lessons of war time." He insists that the essential virtues which are necessary to a war effort are also necessary to a peace effort.

Along with freedom, tolerance and cultivation of the arts and sciences, he says, "we have somehow to preserve the austerities and loyalties and discipline and courage and unselfishness of war—remembering always that civilization is not safety and comfort, but courage and unselfishness."

Tire-saving may yet bring back those signs which older folk remember in the first days of the automobile: "Speed Limit Eight Miles Per Hour."

If you must hoard, confine it to knowledge and merits for good deeds.

EATING RIGHT FOODS?

In these days of stress and strain when everybody must be at their best mentally and physically, health departments everywhere are trying to guide their communities as to proper food and eating habits.

While it may be true that too much has been said about the value of vitamins and minerals in the diet, nevertheless these two food elements have led many to give more attention to their food needs. Because there is no lack of the necessary foods, most individuals pick or choose the foods they like; it does not occur to them that they could possibly be suffering from a lack of the right kind of food to give them strength and energy. For this reason the governments of various countries and many health writers are issuing books and booklets on nutrition for the many individuals who cannot understand why they have not more energy or why they get tired so soon.

In his book "The National Nutrition", Dr. Morris Fishbein, Editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, points out that teachers and parents should be watchful of children as many of the signs of poor nutrition can be easily overlooked.

Signs that suggest poor nutrition are (a) lack of appetite, (b) failure to eat a good breakfast, (c) failure to gain steadily in weight, (d) dislike of play, (e) chronic diarrhoea, (f) inability to sit still, (g) poor sleeping habits, (h) backwardness at school, (i) head colds, (j) bad posture, (k) sores at corners of mouth.

These same signs and symptoms are often seen in teen age boys and girls also and require the same careful attention.

The "food guide" issued by the United States Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services, published in poster form "can be applied simply and practically in every home."

"Milk and milk products—at least a pint for everyone—more for children—or cheese, or dried or evaporated milk."

"Oranges, tomatoes, grapefruit—or raw cabbage or salad greens—at least one of these."

"Green or yellow vegetables—one big helping, other vegetables and fruits in season."

"Bread and Cereal"—whole grain or enriched white bread and flour."

"Meat, poultry or fish — dried beans, peas or nuts occasionally.

"Eggs — at least 3 or 4 a week, cooked any way you choose or in "made" dishes."

"Butter and other spreads — vitamin-rich fats, peanut butter, and similar spreads."

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

One of the most active clergymen in Kingston in the years at the turn of the century was the Rev. Dr. R. C. Dodds of the First Presbyterian Church. He was also known as the author of several books. On February 18, 1907, his latest book, "Elisha, the Man of God" was published. Dr. Dodds served the uptown church for a number of years.

Samuel Brown and George Dressel on February 21, 1907, formed the plumbing firm of Brown & Dressel, which is still known as one of the leading firms in Kingston. Mr. Brown for many years was actively interested in civic affairs and served on the Board of Health for several years.

Ten years later on February 23, 1917, the education board met and appointed Dr. Henry Van Hoevenberg to serve as medical examiner in the public schools, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Mary Gage Day who was removing to Ithaca.

In February, 1927, Ray L. Whitbeck, who had been with Teller & Tappen, coal dealers, for many years, accepted a position with the Waterbury & Blankfield Coal Co., with office and yard on Foxhall avenue, at Gage street. Mr. Whitbeck is now with the Kingston Coal Co., and the firm of Waterbury & Blankfield.

Mr. Waterbury for years was with the J. T. Johnson hardware concern and had charge of the branch office on central Broadway before he embarked in the retail coal business. He was also active in city affairs and served as member and president of the charity board for some years.

Mr. Whitbeck is one of the old timers of the local "Y" and in his youth was a member of the famous Columbia basketball team of the "Y" which was one of the leading teams in the Hudson river valley.

It was on March 1, 1927, that the J. J. Newberry Co., took title to the site of the old St. John's Church on Wall street and planned to erect the present modern store on the site. The church was taken down and removed from Wall street to its present location on Albany avenue.

In February, 1927, the Rev. William P. Kemper of Meadville, Pa., accepted a call to become rector of St. John's Church and served the church for a number of years.

The formal opening of the new Kingston exchange of the Hudson River Telephone Co., on central Broadway was held on March 7, 1907. This is the building that now houses the New York Telephone Co.

It was on March 7, 1917, that the Rev. Dr. Putnam Cady was installed pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. Dr. Cady served the uptown church for a number of years and was in great demand as a lecturer while in Kingston.

Roosevelt's Government Will Get Opportunity Through Circumstances to Prove Its Sincerity With New Power

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 12 — The Roosevelt administration is about to be put to the acid test of sincerity and fair dealing in the use of powers delegated by Congress.

For months, opponents of the administration—and many of them became isolationists because of it —have insisted that the true purpose of President Roosevelt was to use the powers of war and national emergency to bring about a system of national socialism.

Supporters of the administration, including those who have been a bit skeptical but who have insisted that the President isn't really radical at heart, have been indignant at any such suggestion. They have declared that the purpose of the President is to win the war and that it was unfair, if not almost treasonable, to intimate that he would ever take advantage of the war powers conferred upon him so as to accomplish reforms which were not within the intent of Congress.

The opportunity to settle this debate has arrived. Congress has bestowed on the chief executive in broad terms the power to stabilize prices, wages and salaries affecting the cost of living in order to aid in the effective prosecution of the war."

Will increases in the salaries or wages affect the cost of living? Will the increases in wages or salaries or their decrease "aid in the effective prosecution of the war?" This is the only criterion of judgment and the President must be able to justify—not to any Supreme Court for it may never get the case—but to his own conscience and all fair-minded persons whether the orders he or Director Byrnes may issue actually do "aid in the prosecution of the war."

The law says nothing about a $25,000 limit but the first executive order arbitrarily selects the $25,000 a year salary and, in effect, states that it doesn't "aid in the prosecution of the war" for anybody to retain more than that amount from his salary after payment of taxes. The same executive order says that fixed obligations may be deducted and that there must not be "any undue hardship" but, as Great Britain has already found in the matter of salary restriction, the incentives to hard work are impaired when managers are forced into financial embarrassment by restrictive measures.

The success of America's industrial production program depends on the enthusiasm of management as well as labor. But the quantity of management available is limited. Today as normal facilities have been expanded in some instances ten fold and even a hundred fold, the duties of the managers have increased tremendously. They work no mere 40-hour week but closer to a 70-hour week. They bear a strain unprecedented in their lives. And now the government comes along and decides that their personal finances must be revised downward.

No such sacrifice is demanded of any class except the managerial class. Labor of course is to be permitted a 15 per cent increase over the cost of living level on January 1, 1941 and there is provision to correct 'substandard" wage levels and "inequalities" which, of course, means that there will be more wage increases and certainly no wage decreases.

The War Labor Board has not heretofore reduced any group's wages and since its precedents will be followed the chances are that the present high wage levels will be frozen.

The new executive order doesn't merely provide against increasing salaries. It provides for the actual reduction of salaries above $25,000 a year after payment of taxes. The number of individuals affected is probably less than 40,000 and by no stretch of a fair-minded man's imagination could it be said that the reasonable increases in salary that might be made for the managers of America's industrial enterprises could even infinitesimally affect the cost of living or interfere with the effective prosecution of the war. On the contrary it could be more easily proved that reasonable increases would aid in the prosecution of the war.

Then why are salaries to be reduced among America's most capable managers? The real reason is that the President told labor leaders he was going to do this in order to get them to accept wage freezing it was a political and not an economic circumstance. Thus the salaries of the executives wouldn't affect the cost of living but runaway wage scales among the workers would bring about such a result. So American management even though the victims of the deal as well swallow the restriction with the comforting fact that they are being called upon not for "equality or sacrifice to help the administration out of the hole into which it has been plunged by a long series of steps granting inflation, the administration is struggling to curb it by punishing the minority who had nothing to do with it.

Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington — About 16 months ago, President Roosevelt elevated Senator James Francis Byrnes to the United States Supreme Court.

"Why?" asked both the off-side and on-side politicians in almost the same breath.

"Jimmy" Byrnes, then majority leader of the Senate, was the "little fox" of administration politics. The President, they said, was pulling out his strongest congressional prop. He was, they continued, relegating his most popular legislative leader to that political graveyard — the Supreme Court.

The answer to the criticism should now be pretty clear. The President was only saving "Jimmy" Byrnes for that day when he needed him more than he ever had before. For almost a year and a half, with one crisis following another, Associate Justice James F. Byrnes has been sitting serenely on the sidelines, hiding his light under that marble basket which is the highest court in the land; and nursing, through many storms, one of the best political reputations the New Deal has turned out.

Then came the necessity for appointing a stabilization czar to administer the sweeping anti-inflation legislation.

This meant calling up a man who could stand back of frozen wages and farm price ceilings. It meant appointing an executive who could straighten out the political muddle that has caused so much criticism of the otherwise competent price administrator, Leon Henderson. It meant setting up a four-star general of cost-of-living stabilization who could demand respect from the public and reverence from the politicians.

It's a rare—almost unheard of —thing for a U. S. Supreme Court justice to step down from the security of that high bench to take over a spot on the firing line, even when that spot is economic chief of staff to the President himself. Nevertheless, the move is characteristic of "Jimmy" Byrnes.

Small, wiry, sharp-featured, nervous, energetic Byrnes is not the kind to walk out his life in the sombre robes of a supreme court justice. The story goes that he wanted that job on the court more than he wanted anything else and the President, recognizing both ability and a debt for work well done, gave it to him. Perhaps the President knew then that "Jimmy" wouldn't like it so well that he couldn't be called out to battle again when the need should com-distinguished career in his majesty's navy, admitted this to me with a grin. It thus becomes a matter of persuasion on the part of the ministry of information when one of the services gets sticky about giving up the news.

Anglo Censorship Permits Publicity

Here it may be said that the firm of Bracken and Thomson appears to be doing a grand job of publishing for the public.

There is the most liberal interpretation of the rule excluding the publication of information which might aid the enemy. He is given full credit for having an intelligence service which keeps him well informed and the British public isn't made to wait unless it is obvious that circulation of news would do harm.

Is Outstanding Personality

Bracken is one of the outstanding personalities in Britain. Since the ministry of information has a vast responsibility for public morale, he also is one of the keystones of the government at the comparatively youthful age of 41.

I long had wanted to meet this man who for years has been so closely associated with Winston Churchill in work and friendship as to be regarded by some almost in the light of the Prime Minister's alter ego. I wasn't disappointed.

Bracken is a huge chap whose six feet of fighting-Irish is topped off by a cascade of such flamingly red hair that if you call him colorful you lay yourself open to a charge of punning.

Words apt and pungent pour from him at the rate of 200 per minute like one of the tumbling streams that empty into the silver lakes of his native Ireland. And when sitting he pounds his knee by way of emphasis until your own leg aches in sympathy.

He is clever and generally suave but like the Prime Minister, whose disciple he is, that facile tongue of his can cut. The House of Commons, of which he has been a member for 13 years, knows all that from experience. Apart from politics, he has been the publisher of numerous periodicals and books and thus is close to the newspaper world.

I called the Minister's attention to the fact that members of some armed services advocate creation of official reporters to cover the news. These reporters would be professional fighting men and would replace war correspondents now sent into the field by newspapers.

Bracken's broad shoulders heaved and his fiery crest bristled.

"Impossible!" he exploded.

"It wouldn't be fair to the public. And no man who isn't a trained and experienced journalist is capable of producing the report to which the people are entitled."

He gestured with his expressive hands and machine-gunned at another target.

"We believe in giving the press freedom of expression. During the desert fighting in northern Africa, British correspondents in the field even criticized our command. They raised the devil with us back home. But we let them go ahead. We think they have the right to express their views."

From Brendan Bracken I went into the office of the chief censor, whose door is always open. Thomson is a quiet smiling man of 53 who is said to be one of the best liked persons in Britain.

Rarely have I heard so much enthusiasm expressed over an individual, which undoubtedly accounts for his great success in dealing with correspondents and publishers—and with those hard-boiled fighting services.

Admiral Is Well Suited

The Admiral is especially well equipped for his difficult task because he not only has had wide experience with the press but being a naval officer, he understands the viewpoint of the traditionally conservative high command. He can talk to salty admirals and brusque generals in their own language—or argue in four foreign tongues, for that matter.

The chief censor is emphatic in support of the thesis that full access to the news is essential to maintain the morale of the people. He agreed, too, that officers couldn't be used succesfully as war correspondents.

There is a debate in Britain at the moment as to whether it is vital to the morale of the fighting forces, as well as of the public, that they be kept fully informed of all angles of the war.

I asked the Admiral how he felt about it.

"Decidedly it's essential," he replied.

"As a matter of fact, when I was in command at sea I used to give a lecture on world news to my crew every week."

We get an even better glimpse of this man who is conducting one of the most delicate and difficult jobs in the world when we are given the code under which he works.

Let him tell you himself:

"It would be best, I think, to keep the enemy in the dark about everything but if we did that it would mean keeping our own people in the dark and that would never do, for the people have the right to know what is going on around them.

"They have the right to draw their own conclusions to criticize and to demand that what appears wrong to them should be put right.

"Between these two competing principles, the press censor is trying to produce a result which gives effect to them both."

Cyclists in New Zealand who wish to buy new tires will have to prove their bicycles are essential for purposes of work or education and that no other means of transport are available.

Catskill Young Man 'Bags' 4 Nazi Planes

Sergeant Howard V. Wilbur, 26, of 98 West Bridge street, Catskill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Wilbur, is credited with bagging four German planes while taking part in an Allied daylight bombing attack over France recently. Sergeant Wilbur was serving as tail gunner in a Flying Fortress.

Sergeant Wilbur enlisted in the Army Air Corps two weeks after Pearl Harbor. According to the youth's father, his son used to spend one-third of a $12 pay check to learn flying. He said his son became interested in flying about three years ago and spent between $4 and $5 a week traveling to Albany to take flying lessons. Sergeant Wilbur has a brother in service in England.

Hours for Taking Game Are Listed For Area Hunters

Albany, Oct. 12—It would appear from the numerous inquiries being received by the Conservation Department that some sportsmen are experiencing difficulty in determining what are the hours during which wildlife may be taken when such hours are fixed in the law.

To clarify the situation Acting Conservation Commissioner John T. Gibbs has issued the following statement:

"The nation is operating on War Time and will continue so to operate until there is a change by Federal proclamation.

"In all cases where the shooting hour strats on the opening day of a given open season in the middle of the day, the hunting hours will be from 1 p. m., to 6 p. m., War Time.

"In all cases where the remaining days of the open season start in the morning and stop in the evening, the hours will be from 8 a. m., to 6 p. m., War Time.

"In all cases where wildlife may be taken from sunrise to sunset on each day of the open season, sportsmen should be governed by the time of sunrise and sunset fixed by any standard almanac or government timetable for the area or county hunted. On each day of the open season on grouse or partridge and migratory birds hunting will start at sunrise and end at sunset.

To illustrate how the sportsmen should figure out the starting and closing hours, take the case of grouse or partridge in the Albany area. The season opens October 1. On that date, according to the World Almanac for 1943, sunrise occurs at 5:51 Eastern Standard Time. Therefore, the sportsmen may start to take the species listed above at 6:51 a. m., War Time. Sunset on that date in the Albany area will occur at 5:38 p. m., Eastern Standard Time. Therefore, the sportsman must stop hunting at 6:38 p. m., War Time. In other words, throughout the State sportsmen may start to take the above species of wildlife by their watches, one hour later than the time of sunrise stated in any reliable almanac.

"Fur bearing animals may be taken during any hour of the day or night on any day of the open season fixed therefor.

"Quadrupeds and birds not protected by law may be taken at any hour of the day or night at any time.

"Deer and bear may be taken on any day of the open season from 8 a. m. War Time to 6 p. m. War Time.

Our cause is not only liberty for ourselves but liberation for others. An American victory will be a United Nations victory and a victory for oppressed and enslaved people everywhere. I like to remember on this significant anniversary the words of a contemporary poet:

Save one that faith deciphered in the skies."

We have the faith; deeds will implement it.

Champion Joe Louis Declares He's Through With Boxing

Brown Bomber Says He's Getting Old; Might Change

N.B.A. Head Says Joe Will Be Tabbed as 'Champ Emeritus'; Others Are Named

By SID FEDER

New York, Oct. 12 (AP)—Unless Joe Louis changes his mind—or Uncle Sam changes it for him—the greatest fistic career of this era is ended.

The quiet, simple colored boy who skyrocketed out of an Alabama cotton patch into such fistic fame that many experts rank him as the greatest fighter of all time, paused in Omaha yesterday to say casually that his "fightin' days are over."

He said it in the typical Louis way, without frills or drum-beating; the same way in which he dropped all the glory and financial that goes with the heavyweight championship to enlist in the United States army as a private last January.

"By the time this war is over," he reckoned, "I'll be in my 30's, and that's too old for a fighter. I'm too old for it now.

"Y'know, I really don't care much any more about going back into the ring."

Of course, it would all change if the War Department decides to let Joe—he's a sergeant now—out to toss his bombs again. But the army already has turned thumbs down on one fight for the Bomber—his eagerly-looked-for return go with Corporal Billy Conn.

"I'll do anything the army asks," Joe said. "I'm in the army now and they're taking care of my plans."

Naturally, Joe could change his mind. He wouldn't be the first champion who couldn't get the "rosin out of his blood." But as matters stand now, the Bomber, at 28, is giving up a reign that already has netted purses of more than $2,000,000 and has broken all records for successful defenses of the fight game's most prized bauble. He has turned back 21 challengers since he won the crown from old rough-and-ready Jim Braddock back in 1937, and no champ ever came within shouting distance of that mark.

Surprises Sports World

Although it was known for some three years that the ring had lost its zest for him—that he was no longer a "hungry" fighter—his statement came as a complete surprise, even to his closest associates—men like Promoter Mike Jacobs, who has put on every Louis fight since he first hit the "big apple" back in 1935, and to John Roxborough, who with Julian Black, piloted him out of the amateurs, through the $50-a-bout preliminary days and into the million-dollar-gate stages.

"Joe may think he's through with fighting," said Abe J. Greene, president of the National Boxing Association, "but fighting will never be through with Joe."

Greene added that when the N.B.A. receives official word of Joe's retirement, it will tab him "Champion Emeritus" and will name Bob Pastor and Tami Mauriello, New York heavyweights, and Lee Savold of Des Moines to fight it out for ranking as "champion pretender," at least until the war is over. "With Conn also in the army," Greene said, "those three are the top men in action today."

Should Joe make his decision, he would be the third heavyweight champion in all ring history to give up the head man's spot. And, as was the case when Jim Jeffries and Gene Tunney did it, his abdication not only would take a lot out of the fight game, but also will leave the situation immediately afterward in a confusing tangle.

Of course, the logical assumption is that Joe would take it all back if the war should end in the next few months. His implication was that as long as he was on the sunny side of 30, he might take a crack at it again. A return match with Conn figures to make the cash register jingle for half a million dollars or more. And it is no secret that Joe could use ready cash, since much of his money is tied up in property and he has several important debts hanging over him, not the least of which is a $117,000 income tax bill from the government.

Altogether, he has been fighting eight years, has been seen in action by approximately 1,100,000 fans and has earned $2,227,859, but only some 25 per cent of this sum reached his pocket after expenses and "cuts."

47 by Knockouts

All in all, he has had 57 professional fights. He won 56 of them—47 by knockouts. His only defeat was a 12-round kayo by Max Schmeling in 1936, a setback he avenged two years later by putting Max to sleep in one round.

From the time he outpointed Natie Brown in 1935, he tore the heavyweight ranks apart, but through it all, he changed little from the likeable, unaffected youngster he was the first day he "arrived."

It was his character more than his fistic ability that led former Mayor James J. Walker to pay tribute to him as "a great negro and a fine American—and something more: You've laid a red rose on Abe Lincoln's grave." That was last winter when Joe was given the New York fight writers' award as 1941's fighter of the year, and Louis replied simply, "I thought the day I won the heavyweight championship would stand out as the happiest day of my life; but this tops that."

That's the Way

Chewelah, Wash. — For 15 years W. B. Carter had been promising his wife venison, but what with chores and all, he just never found time to kill a deer.

So Mrs. Carter looked out the farmhouse window and saw a big buck nibbling in her garden. She reached for the Carter rifle.

Frankie Sinkwich One of Top Scorers In College Football

New York, Oct. 12 (AP) — Three players, including all-America Frankie Sinkwich of Georgia, share the lead among the nation's football scorers as the season nears its halfway point.

Others of the top-ranking trio are Lee Tevis of Washington University at St. Louis and Ralph La Pointe of Vermont. Each has scored 42 points.

The performance of La Pointe outranks those of the other two, however, since he has appeared in only three games while the others have played four each. In addition, the Vermont halfback was on the losing team in two of the three contests, one of which was a 70-13 rout at the hands of Rhode Island State.

Andy Victor of the Citadel and Bob Steuber of Missouri are only three points behind the leaders with 39 each. Victor has played in three games, while Steuber needs four to amass his total.

Mixed Canine Results

When better bowlers are found in these parts they'll have to answer to Johnny Ferraro, co-proprietor of the Central Recreation alleys, who really hit the jackpot last night in the Mixed Canine Bowling League.

Johnny, who hasn't done too much work on the lanes this fall, made up for any lost time when he sparked the Bull Dogs to six straight victories in league competition which boosted that outfit to first place.

In a postponed match with the Cocker Spaniels the Bull Dogs won three games as Johnny reeled off a sensational 662 series. Everything the veteran kegler threw was pin-making as he collected scores of 202, 234 and 226. The 234, of course, was high in the match. With Ferraro blasting away in great style the Bull Dogs mounted up a 2490 team triple. Jim Roe and Orv Van Alstyne paced the losers as the former had a 532 triple and Van Alstyne 554.

Ferraro Clips 256 Single

However, this wasn't all for one of Kingston's greatest bowling stars. Against the Scotties the Bull Dogs went out and grabbed three more games. Again Ferraro was the game decider with a 659 triple. He posted 202 in the first game and then surpassed his 234 in the postponed match with a cool 256 single and finished up with 201. W. Robertson was high for the losing Scotties.

While Johnny Ferraro did some great shooting last night at the Rec alleys there were a few other noteworthy scores turned in. Larry Petersen of the Terriers rolled a 553 triple and a 213 single despite the fact that the Terriers dropped two games to the third place Whippets. J. Lowe took honors for the Whippets with a 511 triple.

Bea Schaller's 190 single and 523 series helped the Great Danes to cop two games from the Greyhounds. By winning the Danes pulled into second place in a tie with the Whippets. Walt Lapine of the Greyhounds was high for that club with a 469 series.

Bob Eisele's 209 single and 507 series paced the last place Police Dogs to two victories over the Spaniels. Bob's other scores were 126 and 172. M. Van Alstyne had 467 for the Spaniels.

Dick Whitesell Scores Two For Syracuse; P. H. S. Wins

60-Yard Run Nets Orange Gridders Touchdown in First; Hempe Sparks High School Team

Poughkeepsie High School took an undisputed possession of the local sports spotlight during the week-end. Friday night in Syracuse, Dick Whitesell, former Bridge City great back, sparked Bill Orange to a 13 to 0 victory over Western Reserve.

Early in the first quarter Dick grabbed a pass thrown by Bunky Morris on Syracuse's 40 and then raced 60 yards for a touchdown. In the second period Whitesell climaxed a scoring thrust by Syracuse when he bunked over from the 10-yard line for the second Orange touchdown of the game.

Poughkeepsie High Wins

Meanwhile, Sammy Kalloch's 1942 edition of Poughkeepsie High School's football team continued on the rampage Saturday by trimming a great Middletown team by 14 to 0, possibly showing what's in store for the Middies due to the loss of Tony Gobeo.

Don Hempe was the fireman for Poughkeepsie by tossing two touchdown passes, one to Jim Morgan and another to Johnny Berish. Hempe booted both extra points.

Middletown, a favorite to wallop the Bridge City club before Gobeo became ineligible this week, couldn't muster up enough strength to stop Poughkeepsie or start one of its own dangerous thrusts. Middletown will be host to Kingston High School October 31, while the Maroons will entertain Poughkeepsie at the municipal stadium Saturday, October 24.

Fortress Pilot Is Symbolic of Men Who Fly Big Craft

BY WES GALLAGHER

With the U. S. flying fortress command in England, Oct. 12 (Wide World)—"Greater love hath no pilot than to offer his life for his plane"—

That's the modernized American version of an old teaching, as demonstrated by Second Lieutenant Francis Schwarzenbach, 23-year-old flying fortress pilot from Nutley, N. J.

Schwarzenbeck and his co-pilot Kenneth Jones, Detroit, Mich., probably will not be cited or decorated because their feats did not take place on a combat mission—but on a practice mission 32,000 feet above this island.

It happened when the number four motor of Schwarzenbeck's plane, Ala Jane,—named for his wife who lives in Coral Gables, Fla.—started to race. A big piece of the propellor broke off and imbedded itself in the cowling of the number three motor.

With one motor useless, Schwarzenbeck rang the alarm bell warning his crew to be prepared to jump and started a slow spiral downward.

At 29,000 feet the number three motor suddenly exploded, wrecking the landing gear and spreading a sheet of flaming oil from one end to the plane to the other.

While Jones raced through the long fortress gangway seeing that everybody got their chutes and virtually pushing them out the escape hatch, Schwarzenbeck fought the controls of the bucking and burning plane trying to keep it steady and the flames under control.

Jones staggered back to the cockpit with Schwarzenbeck's parachute.

"Here, let's jump," Jones exclaimed.

"Be damned if I will, this plane is named after my wife and it's part of me. I'm going to take her down," Schwarzenbeck replied.

At this moment the number two motor caught fire and desperately Schwarzenbeck cut off the remaining motor and started the flaming ship down in a slow glide, sideslipping in an attempt to put out the fire.

He ordered Jones to jump and the co-pilot stumbled back to the escape hatch and leaped, pulling his ripcord a split second before losing consciousness.

When Jones recovered he was on the ground with a farmer standing over him with a pitchfork poised trying to decide whether he was a German parachutist.

Meanwhile, Schwarzenbeck skillfully glided the burning Alma Jane down through the cloud layer at about 9,000 feet, not knowing whether the mist covered a mountain into which he might crash or open country.

He spotted a small rifle target range which was flat enough for a crash landing and, without power and using his many tonned fortress as an immense glider, Schwarzenbeck brought his plane down without a scratch to himself but tearing off the tail of his ship.

As he stumbled from the battered Alma Jane and saw the extent of the damage, tears rolled down his cheeks. He mumbled to farmers who rushed to the wreckage.

The textile industry of France has available only about two-fifths of the raw materials consumed in the pre-war period, the Department of Commerce reports.

Rondout Church Dedicates Flag For Service Men

A service flag with 21 stars was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies at the Sunday morning service in the Rondout Presbyterian Church in honor of the men of the church who are already in the service of the armed forces.

The flag was presented to the church by George Wolff who has three brothers in the service, on behalf of the members of the Sunday school class of Fred L. Van Deusen. Many on the church's service roll have been members of that class.

The flag was received by the Rev. D. Linton Doherty, pastor of the church, on behalf of the congregation, and was hung near the service flag of 1918, which contains 28 stars.

"Sacrifice and Service" was the theme of the Rev. Mr. Doherty's sermon.

Also placed in a conspicious place in the church is a panel with the photographs of the young men who had served in the first World War, and which had been presented to the church during the years of the first World War by the late Rev. Dr. Charles G. Ellis, who was then pastor of the church.

It is planned to place a similar panel containing the pictures of those serving the second World War in the church, and the Rev. Mr. Doherty already has received some pictures of the boys now in the service. These will be framed beside the pictures of the first World War veterans.

The church's service roll already bears the names of William K. Darling, Charles G. Ellis, Fred Ennist, David H. Finley, Kenneth Glass, LeRoy Hammond, Donald McCausland, David L. Palmer, Francis V. Phillips, Donald Ringwald, Herbert L. Simmons, George W. Simpkins, Robert Simpkins, Terry Staples, Calvin Swart, Donald Van Deusen, Herbert C. Wolff, Raymond Wolff, John W. Wannop and Henry W. Wannop.

Local Trio Shows Work Of Art in Store Window

A symbolic piece of art work, of complicated design and clever execution, depicting the "Tomb of the Beasts," is being displayed in the Flanagan show window on Wall street and is attracting much attention.

It is the work of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis S. Brown, who did the sculpture and art work, and Angelo Bruno, who did the construction. Materials used are stone dust, beeswax, glass and paint. It is built on a scale of ⅝ inch to the foot, and the work involved covered a period of some six months.

The central tower of the tomb has stained glass windows depicting the four riders of the apocalypse—one with a bow, taking peace from the world; one with a sword, bringing war; another with scales for a balancing of issues, and a fourth in the form of death, with power to destroy.

Above the windows are six bronze panels, three of them showing the four beasts of the apocalypse and three showing the signs of the zodiac. Stone sculptures above the door show the less pleasant beasts.

Three crypts, highly ornamented, standing out from the base of the tower, contain the bodies of Hitler, Mussolini and Prime Minister Tojo. Above the latter are shown cobras, this being the "year of the snake" in Japan.

Around the edge of the circular base on which the edifice rests is symbolized the destruction which has followed the march of the dictators' armies in Europe, with little figure groups typifying invasion, starvation and all the horrors and suffering which their acts have entailed.

He spoke of the need of missionary endeavors in these days and of the hardships now being borne by foreign missionaries.

Solemn Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament closed the service with Monsignor Drury as celebrant, the Rev. Edward Nilan of Ellenville as deacon and the Rev. John B. Conroy of Quarryville as sub-deacon. The Rev. John J. Drew, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Church, was master of ceremonies.

Zion Cult Leader Dies in Illinois

Wilbur Glenn Voliva Fails to Reach 106 Years

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP)—Death cut short by 34 years the 106-year-life span Wilbur Glenn Voliva, colorful religious cult leader of Zion, Ill., once predicted he would complete and thereby survive his oft-prognosticated world end.

The self-styled prophet, who persistently preached from his Shiloh Temple that the world was flat, died after a short illness in Billings Hospital last night at the age of 72. He said he would live until 1976.

He made that prediction in 1931, but he never explained how he would survive the end of the world, which most recently he set for 1943.

Although he confined his activity principally to the church colony village of Zion, a community of 6,000 north of Chicago, his fame spread over the nation through his many predictions of the end of the world, made to the exact day for various years.

Of his prediction that the world would end in 1943, Voliva said in 1934 that the period from 1914 to 1942-43, designed in the Bible as the "time of the end," would reach a world climax in 1935-36 in world revolution and chaos. Out of that, he said, would "come the superman, the world-dictator, whose administration of world affairs will continue for approximately seven years, ending with the battle of Armageddon, which battle will never be fought, as it will be halted by the second stage of Christ's coming; namely, his coming in glory to destroy all gentile nations and to inaugurate his millenial rule."

A year later, however, he predicted the battle of Armageddon actually would take place—a battle "so bloody that it will require seven months to bury the slain."

On the one side in the battle, he said, would be the revived Roman Empire, or Fascist alliance, including Italy, France, England and the United States, who would defend the Holy Land from the invasion of the other of the middle and northeastern European nations, grouped into the great northeastern confederacy, a modified type of Communism.

Priest Is Transferred

The Rev. Charles J. McCabe, who for the past few years has been pastor of the Church of the Holy Name of Wilbur, has been transferred by Archbishop Spellman. Father McCabe will have charge of the Church of St. Joseph at Millbrook, Dutchess county.

Plane Hits House, Razes Dwelling And Kills Pilot

New Canaan, Conn., OCT. 12 (AP)—An army plane plunged into the side of a spacious estate home here today, killing the sole occupant of the machine, and touching off a fire which quickly consumed both plane and the house.

John Stanton, nine year old school boy, who saw the crash from less than 200 feet distance, said the pilot of the plane made three attempts to pull his ship out of a spin before it crashed into the building. The army ship was said to have been one of a formation of four ships.

Mrs. Webb Weekes, owner of the home, her maid, Miss Anna Nelson, and three workmen were in a room near that into which the plane smashed but escaped amidst a shower of plaster from falling ceilings.

The plane immediately burst into flames. Witnesses said exploding bullets sprayed about the burning machine and the blaze spread to the lawn.

Firemen from New Canaan and Norwalk sped to the scene as well as a squad of state police. The Weekes home is in the exclusive Silver Mine section of this town, where many New York notables maintain residences.

eSveral hours after the crash only one wing remained partially standing and smoke poured from the burned out interior.

Here Is How Louis Gave His Story

Hunch Brought Kaufman No. 1 Sports Story of Recent Months

By DAVID B. KAUFMAN

Omaha, Oct. 12 (AP)—A big fellow stood head and shoulders above a mob of autograph-seekers, friends, R. O. T. C. men and a few children around him as he left Creighton University's stadium. The big fellow was Heavyweight Boxing Champion of the World Joe Barrow Louis.

Assigned to interview the champ who had participated in an exhibition of the Fort Riley, Kas., drill team between halves of the Creighton University-Fort Riley football game here Sunday, I waited for the crowds of admirers to dissolve before approaching him.

I expected nothing sensational from the world's number 1 fighter but played a hunch. I was wondering what his reaction would be if I asked him whether he planned to retire.

Intruding on this train of thought was Joe's cordial "yes sir, what can I do for you?" I put my hunch to work promptly, asking "Joe do you plan to retire from the ring?"

Unhesitatingly, the khaki clad army sergeant came back, "yes, my fightin' days are over."

"You mean outside the army, don't you, Joe?"

"That's right, I'm in the army now, and they're taking care of my plans but as for the ring—my fightin' days are over."

"Why are you retiring when you're at the top?"

"Cause I'll be too old when this war's over. I'm too old now," the champ quickly answered. Joe is 28.

"You're only 28, which isn't old, Joe."

"That's right, but by the time this war is over I'll be in my 30's and that's too old for a fighter," the champ reiterated.

We briefly discussed the fight which was never held—the bout scheduled between Joe and Billy Conn for today. To come to think of it that's what the boss asked me to talk to Joe about.

The interview completed I told Joe he was going to be quoted on his plans to retire. He smiled a "sure, go ahead."

And so, bidding him goodbye, I left the champ with the story of the end of one of the most sensational careers in prize fight history.

No Further Sign Of Missing Couple

No additional trace of the two missing people who were drowned on September 27 when their car went into the Esopus creek at Cold Brook has been found. The body of Mrs. Elmer Van Demark was recovered last week from the Ashokan reservoir but the bodies of her husband and Miss Mary Terwilliger still are missing.

Searchers have been patroling the reservoir since the one body was recovered and since the two other bodies have not come to the surface it is now presumed they are pinned either in the still unlocated car or in debris in the upper portion of the reservoir. Dragging operations will be started in an effort to locate the car and a tangled mass of trees in the upper end of the west basin will be further investigated in the belief that the two bodies may be caught in the debris.

London, Oct. 12 (AP)—The Moscow radio broadcast reports from Oslo today that Jonas Lie had been dismissed as Norwegian chief of police and that Major Vidkun Quisling had taken personal charge of the civil police.

The Germans, meanwhile, lifted a state of civil emergency imposed on the important Trondheim coastal region last Tuesday. Thirty-four persons were said to have been executed there as saboteurs or hostages during the period of strict control.

Norwegian circles in London said Quisling sources in Stockholm has issued a statement that:

"The state of civil emergency affected a large number of people who had nothing to do with the acts committed. Authorities desire that these people shall not be hit harder than is absolutely necessary for the security of the people."

More Outbreaks Expected

Norwegian circles here predicted that the Norwegians would react with continued outbreaks against Nazi overlordship.

Far from stamping out rebellion, these circles said, the strong measures taken by the Germans probably will serve only to provoke new outbreaks.

"Undoubtedly," one source who must remain anonymous declared, "the Germans have aroused some of the Norwegians in the Trondheim area who have been passive heretofore."

Actually, it was said, the lifting of the state of emergency will mean little because of the normal restraints imposed on the Norwegian population by occupation authorities.

Radio reports from Oslo announcing the lifting of the emergency did not disclose what action the Germans had taken with respect to the 1,000 or more Norwegians they were reported to have arrested during the past few days.

Nazi Morale Declines

A picture of the gradual deterioration of the morale of German occupation forces in Belgium was painted meanwhile by Antoine Delfosse, minister of justice and information in the Belgian government in exile, who recently escaped to Britain.

Delfosse maintained that Germany is on the verge of collapse on the military and home fronts and said it now is only a question of how long she can last.

Belgians, he declared, can "notice evident signs of slow German disintegration which are the precursors of the final debacle.

"The German soldier, formerly so smart and alert, is dull and dejected and complains only about the unexpected length of the war, the end of which he cannot see," he said. "Germany is on the eve of collapse."

Except for the coastal regions, the army of occupation in Belgium now is composed of "old and tired soldiers," whose equipment is much reduced in quantity and quality, the minister said.

He added that German soldiers on leave from the Russian front have a real terror of being sent back and that desertions are increasing.

Ban on Use of Taxicabs For Bingo Trips in Effect

Ban on the use of taxicabs to transport people to and from bingo games, if trips are more than 10 miles long, will become locally enforceable through passage of a special war law in Albany, Joseph Woroma, Poughkeepsie transportation co-ordinator, reported Saturday on receipt of advice from the State War Council office.

At the present time a number of bingo players from Kingston and throughout Ulster county make special trips to Poughkeepsie each week to play their favorite game. These trips will be banned if taxicabs are forbidden to make the trip to and from Poughkeepsie.

Holy Name Group Meets

St. Joseph's Holy Name Society met Sunday evening in the parish hall under the guidance of the president of the society, William F. Leehive. President Leehive urged greater activity of the 100 members present. Among other things he appointed Frank Reis, Jr., chairman of a choral group. The Rev. John D. Simmons, the spiritual director, delivered an instructive talk on Count Pulaski, the great Polish patriot whose birthday was celebrated during the week. Bernard A. Feeney of Rondout showed a series of films which included scenes of Ireland and football highlights of 1940 and 1941.

Two Planes Crash In Mid-Air, One Of Pilots Killed

New York, Oct. 12 (AP)—Two army fighter planes collided in mid-air over populous Queens county today, sending one into a diving crash which killed the pilot while the other landed safely at nearby La Guardia airport.

The crippled plane, its tail assembly sheared off by the impact of the collision, buried itself in a muddy field along the East river in Astoria, Queens—about the only open space in an otherwise highly populated area. The tail of the plane struck seven or eight blocks away but no one was injured.

The First Air Force identified the dead flier as Second Lieutenant Donald M. Broady, 20, of South Gate, Calif., who had lived with his wife Kathleen in New York city while on duty here.

The pilot of the other plane, Second Lieutenant Marvin Bledso of Los Angeles, Calif., was unhurt although his ship was slightly damaged.

Navy Recruiter Will Be in City Later in Week

John McGuire, chief Boatswain's mate, the U. S. Navy recruiter for this district, will be at the Central Post Office here Thursday to accept applicants for enlistment in the Navy and the Naval Reserve. Applicants are requested to bring their birth certificates with them.

Mate McGuire says that there is no foundation for the rumors going around to the effect that the government plans to close recruiting stations and draft men for the Navy. "This is not so, and no such plan is contemplated as far as I know" he said today.

An important fact to remember, he said, was that the Navy can accept men until the day before they are inducted into the Army. Full information as to what the Navy has to offer applicants may be had by writing the U. S. Navy Recruiting Station, Post Office Building, Poughkeepsie, or by calling at the post office here on Thursday.

Round Trip!

Columbus Day is here again, and
I suppose we should Dig up the old boy's history, and deeds—at least the good.
Because it seems that he's the one on whom to place the blame
For getting us to where we are;
that's what the records claim.
I used to think 'twas wonderful that Chris picked out this spot,
So we could all move over here;
but—may be—it was not.
The task of sending back our men and wealth, makes this occur
To me: We'd saved a lot of work
—by staying where we were.
—Lyla Myers

Farmer Smith was suing Farmer Jones and was talking the case over with his lawyer:

Farmer Jones—Do you think it would be a good idea if I sent the judge one of my prize turkeys?

Lawyer — Great Scott, man! Don't do that. You'll lose the case sure if you try to influence the judge that way.

Next day Farmer Jones told his lawyer he had sent the turkey.

Lawyer (moaning)—Oh, oh, oh! Our case is as good as lost right now.

Farmer Jones—Not at all. I sent the turkey, but I put Smith's name on it.

Mr. Simpson was reading the newspaper:

Mr. Simpson—Here's a man got into a drunken brawl and was stabbed to death.

Mrs. Simpson (glancing up from her knitting)—In some low drinking den, I suppose?

Mr. Simpson—No; the paper says he got stabbed in the thoracic cavity.

Mrs. Simpson — Same thing; you'd think the officers of the law would close such a place up.

As we celebrate Columbus Day, let us give thanks that the discoverer of America left this continent where he found it.

Mother—I think she's a wonderful player for her age. Of course, she makes a mistake now and then, but you must remember that she plays entirely by ear.

Friend of the Family—Yes, the trouble is, that's the way I listen.

And How!

For sailing an uncharted sea until you reached our shore.
We thank you, Mr. Columbus, as we never have before.

City Chap—Guess there's a lot of big men born in this town?

Native—No, just babies.

Asked to describe graft, a man put it this way:

"Graft is a system under whose operation most of the people are constantly being embarrassed because they haven't got any money and the rest of the people are constantly having to explain how they got their money."

Draft Board Inquirer — Was there ever any insanity in your family?

Drafted Man—I am told my father was insane right up to his death.

Draft Board Inquirer—How was that?

Drafted Man—Well, right up until father died he thought he was boss of our house.

There are many graceful dancers, but none can match a leaf fluttering from an oak tree in October.

Father—When I was your age I worked twelve hours a day.

Junior—I admire your youthful energy, Dad, but I admire still more the mature wisdom which led you to stop it.

Good Taste Today

SHOULD HOUSE GUEST BRING PRESENT FOR THE HOSTESS?

We are all used to changes in fashions and easily adapt ourselves to them. But changes in point of view are difficult to meet. For example, it has always been considered a courteous impulse for a person invited to stay in someone's house to bring a gift of candy or flowers—or, to an intimate friend, almost anything that one may think pleasing. Or instead of bringing a gift, it has been thought equally proper to send one after returning home. But I have had several letters from readers who seem to feel quite differently.

Occasional hostesses (and hosts) have written me that they resent such gifts as though their guests were trying to enforce some sort of payment. Frankly I don't know what it is they think. All the same their letters make me hesitate about answering a girl who writes me:

"I have been invited by the aunt of my best friend, who is in camp, to spend a week with her. She lives near the camp and I know that she invited me to please him. I have never met her, but she has written me a sweet letter. I would like to know whether I should take her a present or wait and send her one when I get home? And please what are my other obligations?"

In answering this I can say that your only obligation is to be a considerate and appreciative guest. I have already explained at length why it is perhaps best to bring no gift. Perhaps while you are there you may find something she especially likes and that you want very much to give her, and perhaps too you can sound out her "point of view."

Bride's Foster Mothers Are Seated Last

Dear Mrs. Post: The bride has no mother, but lives with and has been brought up these many years by two great-aunts. I am the bridegroom's mother and would like to have you tell us whether I should be escorted up the aisle last of the guests, or whether the two aunts should be last. And whether they or I should leave the church first?

Answer: The aunts enter last because they take the place of the bride's mother. Their appearance means that the bride has arrived at the church. It would be quite proper for you to leave the church first, excepting that their age rather rather suggests that they be given greater deference.

Mrs. Post's booklet, "The Etiquette of Weddings," will answer all the questions about the ceremony and the reception that you have been asking yourself. Send for it, enclosing ten cents. Address Mrs. Post, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

Anglo Censorship Permits Publicity

distinguished career in his majesty's navy, admitted this to me with a grin. It thus becomes a matter of persuasion on the part of the ministry of information when one of the services gets sticky about giving up the news.

Here it may be said that the firm of Bracken and Thomson appears to be doing a grand job of publishing for the public.

There is the most liberal interpretation of the rule excluding the publication of information which might aid the enemy. He is given full credit for having an intelligence service which keeps him well informed and the British public isn't made to wait unless it is obvious that circulation of news would do harm.

Is Outstanding Personality

Bracken is one of the outstanding personalities in Britain. Since the ministry of information has a vast responsibility for public morale, he also is one of the keystones of the government at the comparatively youthful age of 41.

I long had wanted to meet this man who for years has been so closely associated with Winston Churchill in work and friendship as to be regarded by some almost in the light of the Prime Minister's alter ego. I wasn't disappointed.

Bracken is a huge chap whose six feet of fighting-Irish is topped off by a cascade of such flamingly red hair that if you call him colorful you lay yourself open to a charge of punning.

Words apt and pungent pour from him at the rate of 200 per minute like one of the tumbling streams that empty into the silver lakes of his native Ireland. And when sitting he pounds his knee by way of emphasis until your own leg aches in sympathy.

He is clever and generally suave but like the Prime Minister, whose disciple he is, that facile tongue of his can cut. The House of Commons, of which he has been a member for 13 years, knows all that from experience. Apart from politics, he has been the publisher of numerous periodicals and books and thus is close to the newspaper world.

I called the Minister's attention to the fact that members of some armed services advocate creation of official reporters to cover the news. These reporters would be professional fighting men and would replace war correspondents now sent into the field by newspapers.

Bracken's broad shoulders heaved and his fiery crest bristled.

"Impossible!" he exploded.

"It wouldn't be fair to the public. And no man who isn't a trained and experienced journalist is capable of producing the report to which the people are entitled."

He gestured with his expressive hands and machine-gunned at another target.

"We believe in giving the press freedom of expression. During the desert fighting in northern Africa, British correspondents in the field even criticized our command. They raised the devil with us back home. But we let them go ahead. We think they have the right to express their views."

From Brendan Bracken I went into the office of the chief censor, whose door is always open. Thomson is a quiet smiling man of 53 who is said to be one of the best liked persons in Britain.

Rarely have I heard so much enthusiasm expressed over an individual, which undoubtedly accounts for his great success in dealing with correspondents and publishers—and with those hard-boiled fighting services.

Admiral Is Well Suited

The Admiral is especially well equipped for his difficult task because he not only has had wide experience with the press but being a naval officer, he understands the viewpoint of the traditionally conservative high command. He can talk to salty admirals and brusque generals in their own language—or argue in four foreign tongues, for that matter.

The chief censor is emphatic in support of the thesis that full access to the news is essential to maintain the morale of the people. He agreed, too, that officers couldn't be used successfully as war correspondents.

There is a debate in Britain at the moment as to whether it is vital to the morale of the fighting forces, as well as of the public, that they be kept fully informed of all angles of the war.

I asked the Admiral how he felt about it.

"Decidedly it's essential," he replied.

"As a matter of fact, when I was in command at sea I used to give a lecture on world news to my crew every week."

We get an even better glimpse of this man who is conducting one of the most delicate and difficult jobs in the world when we are given the code under which he works.

Let him tell you himself:

"It would be best, I think, to keep the enemy in the dark about everything but if we did that it would mean keeping our own people in the dark and that would never do, for the people have the right to know what is going on around them.

"They have the right to draw their own conclusions to criticize and to demand that what appears wrong to them should be put right.

"Between these two competing principles, the press censor is trying to produce a result which gives effect to them both."

Cyclists in New Zealand who wish to buy new tires will have to prove their bicycles are essential for purposes of work or education and that no other means of transport are available.

Catskill Young Man 'Bags' 4 Nazi Planes

Sergeant Howard V. Wilbur, 26, of 98 West Bridge street, Catskill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Wilbur, is credited with bagging four German planes while taking part in an Allied daylight bombing attack over France recently. Sergeant Wilbur was serving as tail gunner in a Flying Fortress.

Sergeant Wilbur enlisted in the Army Air Corps two weeks after Pearl Harbor. According to the youth's father, his son used to spend one-third of a $12 pay check to learn flying. He said his son became interested in flying about three years ago and spent between $4 and $5 a week traveling to Albany to take flying lessons. Sergeant Wilbur has a brother in service in England.

Hours for Taking Game Are Listed For Area Hunters

Albany, Oct. 12—It would appear from the numerous inquiries being received by the Conservation Department that some sportsmen are experiencing difficulty in determining what are the hours during which wildlife may be taken when such hours are fixed in the law.

To clarify the situation Acting Conservation Commissioner John T. Gibbs has issued the following statement:

"The nation is operating on War Time and will continue so to operate until there is a change by Federal proclamation.

"In all cases where the shooting hour strats on the opening day of a given open season in the middle of the day, the hunting hours will be from 1 p. m., to 6 p. m., War Time.

"In all cases where the remaining days of the open season start in the morning and stop in the evening, the hours will be from 8 a. m., to 6 p. m., War Time.

"In all cases where wildlife may be taken from sunrise to sunset on each day of the open season, sportsmen should be governed by the time of sunrise and sunset fixed by any standard almanac or government timetable for the area or county hunted. On each day of the open season on grouse or partridge and migratory birds hunting will start at sunrise and end at sunset.

To illustrate how the sportsmen should figure out the starting and closing hours, take the case of grouse or partridge in the Albany area. The season opens October 1. On that date, according to the World Almanac for 1943, sunrise occurs at 5:51 Eastern Standard Time. Therefore, the sportsman may start to take the species listed above at 6:51 a. m., War Time. Sunset on that date in the Albany area will occur at 5:38 p. m., Eastern Standard Time. Therefore, the sportsman must stop hunting at 6:38 p. m., War Time. In other words, throughout the State sportsmen may start to take the above species of wildlife by their watches, one hour later than, the time of sunrise stated in any reliable almanac.

"Fur bearing animals may be taken during any hour of the day or night on any day of the open season fixed therefor.

"Quadrupeds and birds not protected by law may be taken at any hour of the day or night at any time.

"Deer and bear may be taken on any day of the open season from 8 a. m. War Time to 6 p. m., War Time.

halted by the totality of conquest.

Our cause is not only liberty for ourselves but liberation for others. An American victory will be a United Nations victory and a victory for oppressed and enslaved people everywhere. I like to remember on this significant anniversary the words of a contemporary poet:

"Columbus found a world and had no chart,
Save one that faith deciphered in the skies."

We have the faith; deeds will implement it.

Champion Joe Louis Declares He's Through With Boxing

Brown Bomber Says He's Getting Old; Might Change

N.B.A. Head Says Joe Will Be Tabbed as 'Champ Emeritus'; Others Are Named

By SID FEDER

New York, Oct. 12 (AP)—Unless Joe Louis changes his mind—or Uncle Sam changes it for him—the greatest fistic career of this era is ended.

The quiet, simple colored boy who skyrocketed out of an Alabama cotton patch into such fistic fame that many experts rank him as the greatest fighter of all time, paused in Omaha yesterday to say casually that his "fightin' days are over."

He said it in the typical Louis way, without frills or drum-beating; the same way in which he dropped all the glory and financial that goes with the heavyweight championship to enlist in the United States army as a private last January.

"By the time this war is over," he reckoned, "I'll be in my 30's, and that's too old for a fighter. I'm too old for it now.

"Y'know, I really don't care much any more about going back into the ring."

Of course, it would all change if the War Department decides to let Joe—he's a sergeant now—out to toss his bombs again. But the army already has turned thumbs down on one fight for the Bomber—his eagerly-looked-for return go with Corporal Billy Conn.

"I'll do anything the army asks," Joe said. "I'm in the army now and they're taking care of my plans."

Naturally, Joe could change his mind. He wouldn't be the first champion who couldn't get the "rosin out of his blood." But as matters stand now, the Bomber, at 28, is giving up a reign that already has netted purses of more than $2,000,000 and has broken all records for successful defenses of the fight game's most prized bauble. He has turned back 21 challengers since he won the crown from old rough-and-ready Jim Braddock back in 1937, and no champ ever came within shouting distance of that mark.

Surprises Sports World

Louis' statement, which he made to Associated Press Staff Reporter David Kaufman after marching with the Fort Riley (Kansas) precision drill team in an exhibition, left the fight world gasping in astonishment.

Although it was known for some three years that the ring had lost its zest for him—that he was no longer a "hungry" fighter—his statement came as a complete surprise, even to his closest associates—men like Promoter Mike Jacobs, who has put on every Louis fight since he first hit the "big apple" back in 1935, and to John Roxborough, who with Julian Black, piloted him out of the amateurs, through the $50-a-bout preliminary days and into the million-dollar-gate stages.

"Joe may think he's through with fighting," said Abe J. Greene, president of the National Boxing Association, "but fighting will never be through with Joe."

Greene added that when the N.B.A. receives official word of Joe's retirement, it will tab him "Champion Emeritus" and will name Bob Pastor and Tami Mauriello, New York heavyweights, and Lee Savold of Des Moines to fight it out for ranking as "champion pretender," at least until the war is over. "With Conn also in the army," Greene said, "those three are the top men in action today."

Should Joe make his decision, he would be the third heavyweight champion in all ring history to give up the head man's spot. And, as was the case when Jim Jeffries and Gene Tunney did it, his abdication not only would take a lot out of the fight game, but also will leave the situation immediately afterward in a confusing tangle.

Of course, the logical assumption is that Joe would take it all back if the war should end in the next few months. His implication was that as long as he was on the sunny side of 30, he might take a crack at it again. A return match with Conn figures to make the cash register jingle for half a million dollars or more. And it is no secret that Joe could use ready cash, since much of his money is tied up in property and he has several important debts hanging over him, not the least of which is a $117,000 income tax bill from the government.

Altogether, he has been fighting eight years, has been seen in action by approximately 1,100,000 fans and has earned $2,227,859, but only some 25 per cent of this sum reached his pocket after expenses and "cuts."

47 by Knockouts

All in all, he has had 57 professional fights. He won 56 of them—47 by knockouts. His only defeat was a 12-round kayo by Max Schmeling in 1936, a setback he avenged two years later by putting Max to sleep in one round.

From the time he outpointed Natie Brown in 1935, he tore the heavyweight ranks apart, but through it all, he changed little from the likeable, unaffected youngster he was the first day he "arrived."

It was his character more than his fistic ability that led former Mayor James J. Walker to pay tribute to him as "a great negro and a fine American—and something more: You've laid a red rose on Abe Lincoln's grave." That was last winter when Joe was given the New York fight writers' award as 1941's fighter of the year, and Louis replied simply, "I thought the day I won the heavyweight championship would stand out as the happiest day of my life; but this tops that."

That's the Way

Chewelah, Wash. — For 15 years W. B. Carter had been promising his wife venison, but what with chores and all, he just never found time to kill a deer.

So Mrs. Carter looked out the farmhouse window and saw a big buck nibbling in her garden. She reached for the Carter rifle.

There's venison on the Carter table now.

Frankie Sinkwich One of Top Scorers In College Football

New York, Oct. 12 (AP) — Three players, including all-America Frankie Sinkwich of Georgia, share the lead among the nation's football scorers as the season nears its halfway point.

Others of the top-ranking trio are Lee Tevis of Washington University at St. Louis and Ralph La Pointe of Vermont. Each has scored 42 points.

The performance of La Pointe outranks those of the other two, however, since he has appeared in only three games while the others have played four each. In addition, the Vermont halfback was on the losing team in two of the three contests, one of which was a 70-13 rout at the hands of Rhode Island State.

Andy Victor of the Citadel and Bob Steuber of Missouri are only three points behind the leaders with 39 each. Victor has played in three games, while Steuber needs four to amass his total.

Mixed Canine Results

When better bowlers are found in these parts they'll have to answer to Johnny Ferraro, co-proprietor of the Central Recreation alleys, who really hit the jackpot last night in the Mixed Canine Bowling League.

Johnny, who hasn't done too much work on the lanes this fall, made up for any lost time when he sparked the Bull Dogs to six straight victories in league competition which boosted that outfit to first place.

In a postponed match with the Cocker Spaniels the Bull Dogs won three games as Johnny reeled off a sensational 662 series. Everything the veteran kegler threw was pinmaking as he collected scores of 202, 234 and 226. The 234, of course, was high in the match. With Ferraro blasting away in great style the Bull Dogs mounted up a 2490 team triple. Jim Roe and Orv Van Alstyne paced the losers as the former had a 532 triple and Van Alstyne 554.

Ferraro Clips 256 Single

However, this wasn't all for one of Kingston's greatest bowling stars. Against the Scotties the Bull Dogs went out and grabbed three more games. Again Ferraro was the game decider with a 659 triple. He posted 202 in the first game and then surpassed his 234 in the postponed match with a cool 256 single and finished up with 201. W. Robertson was high for the losing Scotties.

While Johnny Ferraro did some great shooting last night at the Rec alleys there were a few other noteworthy scores turned in. Larry Petersen of the Terriers rolled a 553 triple and a 213 single despite the fact that the Terriers dropped two games to the third place Whippets. J. Lowe took honors for the Whippets with a 511 triple.

Bea Schaller's 190 single and 523 series helped the Great Danes to cop two games from the Greyhounds. By winning the Danes pulled into second place in a tie with the Whippets. Walt Lapine of the Greyhounds was high for that club with a 469 series.

Bob Eisele's 209 single and 507 series paced the last place Police Dogs to two victories over the Spaniels. Bob's other scores were 126 and 172. M. Van Alstyne had 467 for the Spaniels.

The standings to date:

Maroon Harriers Trim Beacon High

Rion, Local Runner, Finishes in First

With four cross country galloppers finishing in the list of the first five finishers, Kingston High School's harriers scored a 20 to 35 victory over Beacon High School last Friday at the municipal stadium.

The Maroon and White squad was represented by Don Rion, in first place, followed by John Prentiss of Beacon in second. McGrane, Fitzgerald and Moser of Kingston copped the next places. The winning time was 13 minutes. Culver, another Kingston entry, finished in seventh place.

Last week Mont Pleasant of Schenectady scored a 25 to 30 win over Kingston.

Dick Whitesell Scores Two For Syracuse; P. H. S. Wins

60-Yard Run Nets Orange Gridders Touchdown in First; Hempe Sparks High School Team

Poughkeepsie High School took an undisputed possession of the local sports spotlight during the week-end. Friday night in Syracuse, Dick Whitesell, former Bridge City great back, sparked Bill Orange to a 13 to 0 victory over Western Reserve.

Early in the first quarter Dick grabbed a pass thrown by Bunky Morris on Syracuse's 40 and then raced 60 yards for a touchdown. In the second period Whitesell climaxed a scoring thrust by Syracuse when he bunked over from the 10-yard line for the second Orange touchdown of the game.

Poughkeepsie High Wins

Meanwhile, Sammy Kalloch's 1942 edition of Poughkeepsie High School's football team continued on the rampage Saturday by trimming a great Middletown team by 14 to 0, possibly showing what's in store for the Middies due to the loss of Tony Gobeo.

Don Hempe was the fireman for Poughkeepsie by tossing two touchdown passes, one to Jim Morgan and another to Johnny Berish. Hempe booted both extra points.

Middletown, a favorite to wallop the Bridge City club before Gobeo became ineligible this week, couldn't muster up enough strength to stop Poughkeepsie or start one of its own dangerous thrusts. Middletown will be host to Kingston High School October 31, while the Maroons will entertain Poughkeepsie at the municipal stadium Saturday, October 24.

Plane Hits House, Razes Dwelling And Kills Pilot

New Canaan, Conn., OCT. 12 (AP)—An army plane plunged into the side of a spacious estate home here today, killing the sole occupant of the machine, and touching off a fire which quickly consumed both plane and the house.

John Stanton, nine year old school boy, who saw the crash from less than 200 feet distance, said the pilot of the plane made three attempts to pull his ship out of a spin before it crashed into the building. The army ship was said to have been one of a formation of four ships.

Mrs. Webb Weekes, owner of the home, her maid, Miss Anna Nelson, and three workmen were in a room near that into which the plane smashed but escaped amidst a shower of plaster from falling ceilings.

The plane immediately burst into flames. Witnesses said exploding bullets sprayed about the burning machine and the blaze spread to the lawn.

Firemen from New Canaan and Norwalk sped to the scene as well as a squad of state police. The Weekes home is in the exclusive Silver Mine section of this town, where many New York notables maintain residences.

Damage to the house, a 200 year old mansion which had been extensively modernized, was unofficially placed at $50,000.

eSveral hours after the crash only one wing remained partially standing and smoke poured from the burned out interior.

Here Is How Louis Gave His Story

Hunch Brought Kaufman No. 1 Sports Story of Recent Months

By DAVID B. KAUFMAN

Omaha, Oct. 12 (UP)—A big fellow stood head and shoulders above a mob of autograph-seekers, friends, R. O. T. C. men and a few children around him as he left Creighton University's stadium. The big fellow was Heavyweight Boxing Champion of the World Joe Barrow Louis.

Assigned to interview the champ who had participated in an exhibition of the Fort Riley, Kas., drill team between halves of the Creighton University-Fort Riley football game here Sunday, I waited for the crowds of admirers to dissolve before approaching him.

I expected nothing sensational from the world's number 1 fighter but played a hunch. I was wondering what his reaction would be if I asked him whether he planned to retire.

Intruding on this train of thought was Joe's cordial "yes sir, what can I do for you?" I put my hunch to work promptly, asking "Joe do you plan to retire from the ring?"

Unhesitatingly, the khaki clad army sergeant came back, "yes, my fightin' days are over."

"You mean outside the army, don't you, Joe?"

"That's right, I'm in the army now, and they're taking care of my plans but as for the ring—my fightin' days are over."

"Why are you retiring when you're at the top?"

"Cause I'll be too old when this war's over. I'm too old now," the champ quickly answered. Joe is 28.

"You're only 28, which isn't old, Joe."

"That's right, but by the time this war is over I'll be in my 30's and that's too old for a fighter," the champ reiterated.

We briefly discussed the fight which was never held—the bout scheduled between Joe and Billy Conn for today. To come to think of it that's what the boss asked me to talk to Joe about.

The interview completed I told Joe he was going to be quoted on his plans to retire. He smiled a "sure, go ahead."

Cornerstone Rites For New Baptist Church Are Held

Ceremonies for the laying of the corner stone of the Progressive Missionary Baptist Church on Hone street, near Abeel street, were held on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

No Further Sign Of Missing Couple

No additional trace of the two missing people who were drowned on September 27 when their car went into the Esopus creek at Cold Brook has been found. The body of Mrs. Elmer Van Demark was recovered last week from the Ashokan reservoir but the bodies of her husband and Miss Mary Terwilliger still are missing.

Searchers have been patroling the reservoir since the one body was recovered and since the two other bodies have not come to the surface it is now presumed they are pinned either in the still unlocated car or in debris in the upper portion of the reservoir. Dragging operations will be started in an effort to locate the car and a tangled mass of trees in the upper end of the west basin will be further investigated in the belief that the two bodies may be caught in the debris.

Radio Reports Say Quisling Takes Charge of Civil Police

London, Oct. 12 (AP)—The Moscow radio broadcast reports from Oslo today that Jonas Lie had been dismissed as Norwegian chief of police and that Major Vidkun Quisling had taken personal charge of the civil police.

The Germans, meanwhile, lifted a state of civil emergency imposed on the important Trondheim coastal region last Tuesday. Thirty-four persons were said to have been executed there as saboteurs or hostages during the period of strict control.

Norwegian circles in London said Quisling sources in Stockholm has issued a statement that:

"The state of civil emergency affected a large number of people who had nothing to do with the acts committed. Authorities desire that these people shall not be hit harder than is absolutely necessary for the security of the people."

More Outbreaks Expected

Norwegian circles here predicted that the Norwegians would react with continued outbreaks against Nazi overlordship.

Far from stamping out rebellion, these circles said, the strong measures taken by the Germans probably will serve only to provoke new outbreaks.

"Undoubtedly," one source who must remain anonymous declared, "the Germans have aroused some of the Norwegians in the Trondheim area who have been passive heretofore."

Actually, it was said, the lifting of the state of emergency will mean little because of the normal restraints imposed on the Norwegian population by occupation authorities.

Radio reports from Oslo announcing the lifting of the emergency did not disclose what action the Germans had taken with respect to the 1,000 or more Norwegians they were reported to have arrested during the past few days.

Nazi Morale Declines

A picture of the gradual deterioration of the morale of German occupation forces in Belgium was painted meanwhile by Antoine Delfosse, minister of justice and information in the Belgian government in exile, who recently escaped to Britain.

Delfosse maintained that Germany is on the verge of collapse on the military and home fronts and said it now is only a question of how long she can last.

Belgians, he declared, can "notice evident signs of slow German disintegration which are the precursors of the final debacle.

"The German soldier, formerly so smart and alert, is dull and dejected and complains only about the unexpected length of the war, the end of which he cannot see," he said. "Germany is on the eve of collapse."

Except for the coastal regions, the army of occupation in Belgium now is composed of "old and tired soldiers," whose equipment is much reduced in quantity and quality, the minister said.

He added that German soldiers on leave from the Russian front have a real terror of being sent back and that desertions are increasing.

Ban on Use of Taxicabs For Bingo Trips in Effect

Ban on the use of taxicabs to transport people to and from bingo games, if trips are more than 10 miles long, will become locally enforceable through passage of a special war law in Albany, Joseph Woroma, Poughkeepsie transportation co-ordinator, reported Saturday on receipt of advice from the State War Council office.

At the present time a number of bingo players from Kingston and throughout Ulster county make special trips to Poughkeepsie each week to play their favorite game. These trips will be banned if taxicabs are forbidden to make the trip to and from Poughkeepsie.

Holy Name Group Meets

St. Joseph's Holy Name Society met Sunday evening in the parish hall under the guidance of the president of the society, William F. Lechive. President Lechive urged greater activity of the 100 members present. Among other things he appointed Frank Reis, Jr., chairman of a choral group. The Rev. John D. Simmons, the spiritual director, delivered an instructive talk on Count Pulaski, the great Polish patriot whose birthday was celebrated during the week. Bernard A. Feeney of Rondout showed a series of films which included scenes of Ireland and football highlights of 1940 and 1941.

Two Planes Crash In Mid-Air, One Of Pilots Killed

New York, Oct. 12 (UP)—Two army fighter planes collided in mid-air over populous Queens county today, sending one into a diving crash which killed the pilot while the other landed safely at nearby La Guardia airport.

The crippled plane, its tail assembly sheared off by the impact of the collision, buried itself in a muddy field along the East river in Astoria, Queens—about the only open space in an otherwise highly populated area. The tail of the plane struck seven or eight blocks away but no one was injured.

The First Air Force identified the dead flier as Second Lieutenant Donald M. Broady, 20, of South Gate, Calif., who had lived with his wife Kathleen in New York city while on duty here.

The pilot of the other plane, Second Lieutenant Marvin Bledso of Los Angeles, Calif., was unhurt although his ship was slightly damaged.

Navy Recruiter Will Be in City Later in Week

John McGuire, chief Boatswain's mate, the U. S. Navy recruiter for this district, will be at the Central Post Office here Thursday to accept applicants for enlistment in the Navy and the Naval Reserve. Applicants are requested to bring their birth certificates with them.

Mate McGuire says that there is no foundation for the rumors going around to the effect that the government plans to close recruiting stations and draft men for the Navy. "This is not so, and no such plan is contemplated as far as I know" he said today.

An important fact to remember, he said, was that the Navy can accept men until the day before they are inducted into the Army. Full information as to what the Navy has to offer applicants may be had by writing the U. S.
